Market Context

The U.S. and European senior floating rate loan markets delivered modestly positive returns in September, supported by carry, though lower-rated credits lagged, and late-month price action softened given risk-off action in markets. In the U.S., the Morningstar LSTA U.S. Leveraged Loan Index returned +0.21%, the weakest month of the third quarter, as weighted average bid prices declined 26 bps to 95.32 after a software-led rally pushed prices to their highest levels since February before a late-month reversal. European loans also posted a modest gain - with weighted average bid prices moving -11 bps in September to close at 95.98 - as the Morningstar European Leveraged Loan Index returned +0.28% ex-currency, supported by BBs and Single Bs while CCC & Lower loans declined. Rates markets remained volatile as investors continued to reassess the path of policy amid still-elevated inflation, resilient growth and geopolitical uncertainty. In September, the Fed raised the target range by 25 bps to 3.75%–4.00%, and U.S. Treasury yields rose sharply across the curve, with the 2-year yield up 55 bps to 4.89%, the 5-year up 59 bps to 5.09% and the 10-year up 54 bps to 5.29% as markets priced in rates being higher for longer given a more hawkish Fed.

Market Performance[1]

- U.S. senior floating rate loans, as measured by the Morningstar LSTA U.S. Leveraged Loan Index (LLI), returned +0.21% in September, +1.95% in the third quarter and +3.29% year to date. The LL100 Index, which tracks the largest and most liquid issuers, returned +0.28%, +2.66% and +3.08% over the same periods, respectively. In September, Single B loans and the LL100 outperformed the broader index, while BB loans modestly lagged and CCC and lower-rated loans declined sharply. By rating, the BB Index returned +0.20% in September, +1.59% for the quarter and +4.17% year to date; the Single B Index returned +0.39%, +2.53% and +3.62%, respectively; and the CCC & Lower Index returned -2.18%, -2.64% and -5.98%, respectively.
- European leveraged loans (Morningstar European Leveraged Loan Index "ELLI", excluding currency) returned +0.28% in September, +1.07% in 3Q and +2.91% YTD. Performance for European loans was mixed across rating cohorts in the month, with Single Bs leading at +0.38%, followed by BBs at +0.28%, while CCC & Lower declined -1.77%. In 3Q, Single Bs led at +1.34%, followed by BBs at +1.13%, while ELLI returned +1.07% and CCC & Lower returned -4.34%. On a YTD basis, BBs lead at +3.93%, while Single Bs returned +3.05% and CCC & Lower returned -3.34%.

Fundamentals and Default Rates[1]

Loan market fundamentals remain stable for most issuers, though some lower-rated issuers continue to face industry-specific pressures. Our latest bottom-up base case 2-year cumulative default estimate for U.S. loans (2026–2027) remains 5.75%–6.25%, around historical averages.

- The trailing 12-month U.S. loan market default rate as of September was 0.93% excluding distressed exchanges, while the par-weighted default rate including distressed exchanges declined 31 bps MoM to 2.08%, its lowest level since January 2023 and below the 25-year average of 2.9%. September loan default/LME volume totaled $757M, driven by Leslie's Poolmart's Chapter 11 filing, with no distressed exchanges/LMEs in the month.
- Loan issuer fundamentals remain broadly stable, but dispersion persists as stress remains concentrated in select lower-rated issuers and sectors. With default and distressed exchange activity subdued in September, the broader loan market has remained resilient, supported by carry, below-average default rates and continued demand for floating-rate income.

Technicals (U.S. Loans)[1]

- U.S. leveraged loan outstandings decreased by $2.4B in September to $1.56T, the first contraction since May, leaving net supply up roughly $26B YTD. CLO issuance slowed to $14.0B across 30 deals and combined with an estimated $824.5M of retail loan fund inflows, measurable demand totaled $14.8B, leaving a $17.2B monthly supply shortfall; YTD demand exceeds net supply by $95.6B.
- Primary activity was led by M&A in September, as LBO/M&A loan volume surged to $30.6B, the busiest month since January 2022, powered by a dozen jumbo term loans. Refinancing volume reached $19.7B, almost double August levels, while repayments fell to $9.9B, a 16-month low. Retail loan funds posted an estimated $824.5M of September net inflows, leaving YTD outflows at $2.9B.

Performance Highlights[1]

- The top performers based on ratings included security selection within B, which more than offset a negative sector effect from the underweight to B, and the overweight to and security selection within Not Rated, while the bottom performers on a relative basis were the overweights to BB and BBB.
- From a sector perspective, the underweight to and security selection in Hotels, Restaurants & Leisure, along with the overweight to and selection in Building Products, Entertainment and Trading Companies & Distributors were the top performers on a relative basis; while security selection in Capital Markets, the underweight to Software (partially offset by the positive from selection), along with security selection in and the overweight to Media, were the top detractors relative to the index.

Outlook

Senior floating rate loan market valuations and all-in yields are attractive, in our view, offering compensation for an around average default outlook and providing durable income. September's 25 basis point Fed rate hike and sharp rise in Treasury yields highlighted the appeal of floating-rate assets, as loans held up while fixed-rate bonds sold off, and higher base rates should lift interest income in the months ahead. Inflation is still well above the Fed's 2% target, and the Fed remains data-dependent with markets pricing the potential for further hikes. We view the inflation pressures as persistent and consistent with historical energy-driven price effects but will monitor for signs of a more durable re-acceleration in underlying inflation. Loan issuer fundamentals are healthy overall, with default rates below long-term averages, even as pockets of stress persist in weaker credits, particularly CCC rated issuers where rising debt service costs leave less room for error. Market direction will depend on fundamentals, central bank policy, employment, inflation and broader macro and geopolitical developments. We remain focused on bottom-up research, emphasizing security selection and proactive risk management, and aim to use volatility to our advantage while staying highly selective in seeking alpha opportunities.
