Asia Responsible Transition Bond – Investment Manager's Report

For the six-month reporting period ended 30 June 2025, the total return for the USD I Accumulating Class was 3.57%. Over the same period, the benchmark index, the JP Morgan Asia Credit Index (Total Return, USD) (the Index), returned 3.83%. (Performance data quoted represent past performance and do not indicate future results. Total returns shown are net of all fees and expenses and include the reinvestment of income dividends and other distributions, if any.)

Macroeconomic, market and asset class conditions during the reporting period

- In the first half of 2025, Asia bonds continued to deliver strong positive returns despite ongoing trade tariff uncertainties and geopolitical tensions in the Middle East, with contributions from spread tightening and lower US Treasury yield. High Yield slightly outperformed Investment Grade, benefitting from a larger spread compression over the period.
- Across the region, policymakers implemented proactive measures to support growth amid external macroeconomic pressures. Overall, the credit fundamentals of Asian corporate issuers remain resilient with default risks largely contained within the Chinese restructured property sector.

What affected the Portfolio's performance during the reporting period

- Contributors to relative returns:
 - Our overweight position in select Chinese property developers contributed positively to performance, supported by policymakers' continued easing stance and commitment to stabilising the housing market.
 - Our overweight exposure to Financial in a number of countries such as Hong Kong, India and Thailand outperformed driven by spread compression and above-benchmark carry.
- Detractors from relative returns:
 - Our overweight to Hong Kong's Real Estate sector detracted as New World Development unexpectedly deferred coupon payments on four of its perpetual bonds.
 - Our underweight to the Macau consumer sector, which is excluded due to the Portfolio's responsible and transition specific policies, detracted as high yield gaming names rallied on the back of robust revenue bookings and continued deleveraging trend.
 - Our spread duration underweight on some countries' sovereign and quasi-sovereign bonds, which are excluded due to the responsible and transition specific criteria on the strategy, also contributed negatively.

Overview of investment activities during the reporting period

- During the reporting period, the Portfolio incrementally increased exposure to high yield bonds, largely in Greater China Real Estate, Mongolia Quasi-sovereign, and India Financials. Conversely, we reduced our country exposure in Indonesia, stemming from market concerns on fiscal risks and the transparency of the Prabowo administration. Additionally, we trimmed our holdings in short-dated investment grade bonds.

In our view, Asian emerging markets debt remains a compelling investment opportunity underpinned by improving credit quality across the market, as well as having a tailwind of negative net issuances for the fourth consecutive year and attractive all-in yield. In the near term, markets may remain sensitive to geopolitical developments surrounding tariffs, which may impact growth in the region. However, we think Asian central banks have room for additional policy rate cuts, while the strong standalone fundamentals of Asian issuers may provide a degree of resilience should macro conditions deteriorate. Our investment strategy continues to favour high yield over investment grade credits for higher carry and we see opportunities for further compression among select improving issuers.

China A-Share Equity – Investment Manager's Report

For the six-month reporting period ended 30 June 2025, the total return for the CNY I Accumulating Class was 0.95%. Over the same period, the benchmark index, the MSCI China A Onshore Index (Total Return, Net, CNY) (the Index), returned 1.58%. (Performance data quoted represent past performance and do not indicate future results. Total returns shown are net of all fees and expenses and include the reinvestment of income dividends and other distributions, if any.)

Macroeconomic, market and asset class conditions during the reporting period

- The China A-Share market experienced heightened volatility this period, driven by shifting macroeconomic and policy conditions. Early on, the launch of the domestically developed DeepSeek large language model (LLM) showcased China's advancements in AI, reigniting global interest in Chinese innovation and equities. However, tensions escalated in early April following the US administration's announcement of "reciprocal tariffs," which triggered a sharp sell-off.
- In response to market turmoil, Central Huijin Investment Ltd., the state-owned investment company, intervened, increasing its exchange-traded funds (ETF) holdings and publicly reaffirming its role as a stabilising force. This intervention helped restore confidence, reflected in rising ETF trading volumes and a subsequent rebound.
- China's GDP growth appears to have reached the robust 5% target in the first half, thanks to front-loading of exports and related production, government bond issuance, and implementation of planned stimulus measures. Within the Index, Financials, Non-Ferrous Metals (especially gold), and Media sectors outperformed; while Coal, Consumer Staples, and Oil & Gas lagged.

What affected the Portfolio's performance during the reporting period

- Contributors to relative returns:
 - Stock selection within Industrials contributed most to the Portfolio's relative returns.
 - An overweight to Communication Services and underweight to Energy also contributed.
- Detractors from relative returns:
 - Stock selection in IT and an underweight in Materials detracted most from relative performance.

Overview of investment activities during the reporting period

- Given the uncertain start to the year, we trimmed some of our domestic and export-oriented growth exposure in favour of names with greater balance sheet strength and more predictable cash flows.
- We reduced exposure to Materials, Consumer Discretionary, and IT holdings this period, and added to Financials, Health Care, and Consumer Staples.

In our view, uncertainty remains heightened on the export front and domestically, with consumer confidence and consumption weak. Still, we believe China offers significant opportunity for prudent investors.

Near term, we anticipate continued volatility and performance dispersion across sectors and names. We believe our focus, on best-in-class opportunities with stable cash flows and high dividends and select innovative growth names in sectors with government support, will be advantageous in the environment we foresee ahead.

China Bond* – Investment Manager's Report

For the period from 1 January until the Portfolio's close on 28 March 2025, the total return for the CNY Z Accumulating Class was -0.31%. Over the same period, the benchmark index, the FTSE Chinese Government and Policy Bank Bond 0-1 Year Select Index (Total Return, CNY) (the Index), returned 0.11%. (Performance data quoted represent past performance and do not indicate future results. Total returns shown are net of all fees and expenses and include the reinvestment of income dividends and other distributions, if any.)

Macroeconomic, market and asset class conditions during the reporting period

- The key development over the quarter was the 14th National People's Congress (NPC) held in early March, which outlined key economic priorities for the year. Most targets announced were within expectations. GDP growth target was maintained at 5%. The official fiscal deficit was set at 4% with CNY1.3 trillion in ultra-long special Chinese Government Bonds (CGB), CNY500 billion for large bank recapitalisation, and a local government special bond quota of CNY4.4 trillion. These initiatives aim to achieve a balance between moderate fiscal expansion and debt management. Another important milestone was President Xi's meeting with a group of private executives in February during which he pledged to lower financing cost for private enterprises. Similar to the November 2018 symposium, this gesture was viewed as a reaffirmation of the government's commitment to supporting the private sector.
- In terms of economic data, near-term activity was supported by exports being frontloaded ahead of anticipated US tariffs. Nonetheless, domestic challenges persisted, as evidenced by weak housing data, persistent deflationary pressures, and a continued slowdown in consumption.
- After a strong rally in CGB yield in 2024, the relatively tight interbank rates in February and March resulted in rates moving higher over the course of the reporting period.

What affected the Portfolio's performance during the reporting period

- Contributors to relative returns:
 - Offshore credits were positive contributors due to attractive yield differentials and spread compression.
- Detractors from relative returns:
 - Onshore credits and rates were the main detractors as yields move higher during the reporting period.

Overview of investment activities during the reporting period

- Apart from the tight onshore credit spreads, the rates differentials between CNY and USD stayed significantly wide, which resulted in an attractive relative value proposition for Chinese USD credits.
- Portfolio liquidated on 28 March 2025.

* Portfolio liquidated on 28 March 2025.

China Equity – Investment Manager's Report

For the six-month reporting period ended 30 June 2025, the total return for the USD I Accumulating Class was 8.29%. Over the same period, the benchmark index, the MSCI China All Shares Index (Total Return, Net, USD) (the Index), returned 11.77%. (Performance data quoted represent past performance and do not indicate future results. Total returns shown are net of all fees and expenses and include the reinvestment of income dividends and other distributions, if any.)

Macroeconomic, market and asset class conditions during the reporting period

- Greater China equities had a solid start in 2025 as the Chinese economy continued to show signs of normalisation with first quarter GDP growth of 5.4% year over year led by strong industrial production, exports and retail sales.
- Policymakers continued to prioritise economic growth with ongoing support to boost domestic consumption and investment in new economy sectors.
- Real estate transaction volume and prices stabilised in tier 1-2 cities, while domestic consumption is gradually recovering. This should enable our Portfolio companies to continue to deliver an improving earnings outlook.

What affected the Portfolio's performance during the reporting period

- Contributors to relative returns:
 - Main contributors relative to the Index included Health Care (stock selection in biotechnology), Consumer Staples (significant underweight) and Energy (underweight).
- Detractors from relative returns:
 - Main detractors relative to the Index included Consumer Discretionary (stock selection in textiles apparel & luxury goods and automobile components), Materials (stock selection in chemicals) and Information Technology (stock selection in electronic equipment instruments & components).

Overview of investment activities during the reporting period

- We continued to identify high quality companies with good earnings visibility. During the reporting period, the Portfolio's exposure to Information Technology had the largest increase from 12.69% to 15.44%. The exposure to Materials had the largest decrease from 8.64% to 4.13%.
- At the end of the reporting period, the Portfolio's largest sector underweight relative to the Index was Financials (11.49% vs. 21.14%) and its largest relative overweight was Industrials (15.21% vs. 7.97%).

US-China trade tensions have de-escalated following the bilateral meetings in Geneva and London. In our view, peak tariffs have been priced into markets after the significant market volatility in April. China's private sector is much better prepared for protracted trade tensions and associated supply chain disruptions since Trump 1.0, offshoring production and diversifying revenue exposure away from the US towards Southeast Asian, Latin American and African countries. Going forward, we anticipate fiscal and monetary policies to remain accommodative, although policy responses will be data dependent. The focus for the Politburo meeting in July will be on potential reforms including the further promotion of manufacturing upgrade, improvements to the domestic social safety net and industrial policy adjustments to reduce excess capacity.

Climate Innovation – Investment Manager's Report

For the six-month reporting period ended 30 June 2025, the total return for the USD I Accumulating Class was 17.72%. Over the same period, the benchmark index, the MSCI All Country World Index (Total Return, Net of Tax, USD) (the Index), returned 10.05%. (Performance data quoted represent past performance and do not indicate future results. Total returns shown are net of all fees and expenses and include the reinvestment of income dividends and other distributions, if any).

Macroeconomic, market and asset class conditions during the reporting period

- In the first half of 2025, the global clean energy sector generally outperformed broader equity markets, driven by strong momentum in the US, Europe, Asia, and select emerging markets. Key growth drivers included surging electricity demand from AI and data centers, aggressive corporate clean energy procurement, and robust government policies supporting domestic manufacturing and supply chain security.
- Regionally, the US saw a boom in clean energy investment and manufacturing, particularly in batteries and solar, fueled by federal incentives. China maintained its leadership in solar, batteries, and EVs, investing heavily in clean tech. Europe focused on grid upgrades and energy security, with Germany and Spain leading in renewables. Technological advances in storage and grid modernisation, as well as increased merger & acquisition activity, further supported sector growth.
- While the sector in the US continues to benefit from strong investment, innovation, and policy support, amendments to the Inflation Reduction Act, such as revised tax credit eligibility and stricter domestic requirements, have created short-term headwinds for certain projects and supply chains. However, over the longer term, these adjustments are expected to boost domestic manufacturing and supply chain resilience.

What affected the Portfolio's performance during the reporting period

- Contributors to relative returns:
 - Overweight to Industrials and underweight to Health Care versus the Index
 - Security selection within Materials, Industrials and Consumer Discretionary
- Detractors from relative returns:
 - Underweight to Financials versus the Index
 - Security selection within Information Technology

Overview of investment activities during the reporting period

- Additions and new positions initiated in companies across various sectors, including subsea equipment, oil recycling, and analog semis, with a focus on companies delivering technological innovations, as well as those we believe will benefit from the broadening of the cyclical recovery.
- Positions were exited in companies where relative risk/reward was deemed less favourable or where specific market or sector challenges persisted.

We continue to see this as a critical flashpoint for global decarbonisation, with the confluence of policy intervention, societal mores, and technological capability driving material investment opportunities. In many industries, successful capturing technologies and commercial differentiation help to determine which companies thrive and which will be left behind. This fund seeks to invest in the global leaders in decarbonisation across the technology maturity curve.

CLO Income – Investment Manager's Report

For the six-month reporting period ended 30 June 2025, the total return for the USD I Accumulating Class was 4.32%. Over the same period, the ICE BofA US Dollar 3-Month Deposit Offered Rate Constant Maturity Index (the Index), returned 2.16%. (Performance data quoted represent past performance and do not indicate future results. Total returns shown are net of all fees and expenses and include the reinvestment of income dividends and other distributions, if any.)

Macroeconomic, market and asset class conditions during the reporting period

- Higher quality Collateralised Loan Obligation (CLO) BB debt spreads ended 2024 in the Secured Overnight Financing Rate (SOFR) +480 basis points (bps) area.
- Strong investor demand in early 2025 more than offset significant primary market supply. As a result, spreads tightened through early-to-mid February, with CLO BB debt spread reaching post-Global Financial Crisis levels of approximately SOFR+450bps. However, headwinds from primary market supply technicals and a deterioration in broader macro sentiment led to widening spread in the second half of the first quarter and into March month-end, with macro weakness primarily driven by tariff-related concerns and the potential impact to US growth.
- CLO BB spreads widened further following "Liberation Day" on 2 April 2025, due to worse than expected tariff proposals from the US administration and concerns regarding the economic implications. Higher quality CLO BB spreads reached a local wide of approximately SOFR+650bps in mid-April prior to the initial 90-day tariff pause. Subsequent to the pause and the decision by the US and China to agree on tariff de-escalations in May, CLO BB spreads rallied into second quarter-end, with CLO BB spreads in the primary market returning to pre-Liberation Day levels in the SOFR+500bps area.
- Year-to-date USD CLO new issue volumes were $80.7 billion, which is keeping pace with last year's record CLO new issuance cadence.
- The trailing 12M par-weighted default rate for the Morningstar LSTA US Leveraged Loan Index as of 30 June 2025 was 1.11%, up 20bps from year-end.

What affected the Portfolio's performance during the reporting period

- Contributors to relative returns:
 - Security selection within USD CLO mezzanine debt market
 - Allocation to EUR single B CLO debt
- Detractors from relative returns:
 - Allocation to CLO BBB debt

Overview of investment activities during the reporting period

- Net inflows during the reporting period were deployed into a mix of USD and EUR CLO BBBs, BBs and single Bs, in the primary and secondary markets.
- The Portfolio's exposure was approximately 38% of CLO holdings in USD CLOs and 58% in EUR CLOs as of period end.

With respect to relative value versus high yield, CLO BB spreads as of 30 June 2025 were near the long-term historical average versus high yield BB OAS, with a spread basis of approximately 340bps.

Commodities – Investment Manager's Report

For the six-month reporting period ended 30 June 2025, the total return for the USD I Accumulating Class was 6.11%. Over the same period, the Bloomberg Commodity Index (the Index), returned 5.53%. (Performance data quoted represent past performance and do not indicate future results. Total returns shown are net of all fees and expenses and include the reinvestment of income dividends and other distributions, if any.)

Macroeconomic, market and asset class conditions during the reporting period

- Markets were volatile in the first half of 2025; "Liberation Day" tariffs created a shock, and prices were pressured by trade uncertainty before stabilising as tariff measures were partially eased later in the period.
- US annual inflation accelerated to 2.7% (headline) and 2.9% (core), supporting the Federal Reserve's (Fed) cautious stance as it monitors for sustained tariff-driven price pressures.
- The Fed kept the federal funds target range unchanged at 4.25 – 4.50%.

What affected the Portfolio's performance during the reporting period

- Contributors to absolute returns:
 - The Portfolio's overweight position in gold was additive to performance, taking advantage of gold's double-digit rise in price year to date, making the most significant contribution to performance.
 - US copper continues to outperform and has been pulling copper imports into the US, driving a global copper shortage, as investors price in the chance of a significant tariff.
- Detractors from absolute returns:
 - Oil contributed negatively amid a volatile first half. In early April, OPEC+ met and announced a surprise increase in production, starting a price war with overproducing members. Prices jumped as the US bombed Iranian nuclear sites in June.
 - Dutch Title Transfer Facility (TTF) natural gas prices slipped, amid mild weather and as investors look towards a potential peace deal in Ukraine. However, in contrast with the US, in Europe natural gas storage is below previous years, and LNG imports will be needed to fill the gap before winter.

Overview of investment activities during the reporting period

- Sector allocation decisions: risk mitigation drove an overweight position in precious metals and platinum as well as an underweight position in grains, particularly soymeal. Scarcity informed an overweight position in livestock. Livestock performed well amid persistent supply constraints and heightened tariff uncertainty. Carry and diversification drove an overweight in TTF gas. Negative carry and valuation led to our underweight in soybean oil and silver.
- Curve positioning decisions: We targeted longer-dated contracts in natural gas and agricultural commodities that offered potential roll yield, while nearby contracts incurred roll costs in these markets.

In a world where volatility is the norm and policies are the catalyst, commodities remain one of the few assets offering both strategic relevance and asymmetric upside. Whether it's carbon, copper, LNG, or gold—these are not trades, they're hedges on a changing world. Don't wait for the next Middle East flare-up to get involved. Build exposure when it's quiet. Stay invested when it's cheap.

Corporate Hybrid Bond – Investment Manager's Report

For the six-month reporting period ended 30 June 2025, the total return for the EUR I Accumulating Class was 2.91%. Over the same period, the benchmark index, the ICE BofA Global Hybrid Non-Financial 5% Constrained Custom Index (Total Return, Hedged, Euro) (the Index), returned 2.61%. (Performance data quoted represent past performance and do not indicate future results. Total returns shown are net of all fees and expenses and include the reinvestment of income dividends and other distributions, if any.)

Macroeconomic, market and asset class conditions during the reporting period

- Global fixed income and risk assets delivered strong returns in the second quarter, supported by resilient investor demand, attractive yields, and stable corporate fundamentals, with notable outperformance in spread sectors and equity indices in May and June.
- Macro conditions remained resilient despite persistent but easing tariff and geopolitical uncertainty; government bond yields were volatile but trended lower by period end, while central banks (notably the European Central Bank) adopted cautious, data-dependent policy stances amid moderating inflation.
- Corporate fundamentals across investment grade and high yield remained stable, though idiosyncratic risks are rising; companies are focused on cost control, and bottom-up credit selection remains key as the outlook for spreads and macro policy stays fluid.

What affected the Portfolio's performance during the reporting period

- Contributors to relative returns:
 - Security selection (approximately 44 basis points(bps)). Selection within Real Estate and Energy were the largest drivers followed by selection in Utilities, Technology, and Healthcare.
 - Our overweight to Telecommunications and underweight to Energy were additive.
 - Duration was not a significant driver of returns but made a small addition to relative performance (around 3bps).
- Detractors from relative returns:
 - Sector allocation was a detractor (approximately 10bps). The Portfolio's cash position was the most significant detractor. However, this is an important means through which we maintain the ability to take advantage of opportunities, particularly in the primary market.
 - Underweight to Real Estate and Consumer Goods, as well as overweight to Utilities were also small detractors of (approximately 2bps each).

Overview of investment activities during the reporting period

- The Portfolio has been strategically managed to navigate increased dispersion and ongoing market volatility. We added resilience to the Portfolio through favourable hybrid structures which provide protection against extension and downside risk, and non-cyclical sectors, particularly utilities and telecommunications, which are resilient to macroeconomic uncertainties, tariffs, and slower growth. We increased North America exposure, including Canadian names such as Bell Canada and Enbridge. Additionally, real estate hybrids with strong fundamentals, rental growth, high-quality assets, and deleveraging efforts were added selectively.

The corporate hybrid market continues to offer a meaningful pick-up in yield vs. broader investment grade markets, trading closer to EUR high yield BB's whilst maintaining an average BBB- rating (at a universe level). Credit fundamentals are in line with investment grade, with issuers at a macro level remaining robust even in the face of tariff related volatility, as a result of prudent balance sheet management, sustained demand and (for specific issuers) additional government support. Importantly, extension risk remains muted. We will continue to select credits well-positioned for the current market environment.

Developed Market FMP – 2027 – Investment Manager's Report

For the six-month reporting period ended 30 June 2025, the total return for the USD I Accumulating Class was 2.93%. (Performance data quoted represent past performance and do not indicate future results. Total returns shown are net of all fees and expenses and include the reinvestment of income dividends and other distributions, if any.)

Macroeconomic, market and asset class conditions during the reporting period

- The first half of 2025 delivered positive returns across fixed income markets, driven primarily by coupon income against a backdrop of generally stable economic data. Spread sectors ended the period with spreads only slightly changed from the start of year, despite a brief spike in volatility following the announcement of a new US tariff policy on 2 April. The subsequent delay in implementation enabled the US to pursue specific trade deals, after which markets resumed a risk-on stance.
- In the first half of 2025, the Federal Reserve (Fed) held its policy rate steady amid uncertainty from new tariffs and their potential inflation effects. Although markets initially delayed rate cut expectations into 2026, subdued inflation data, particularly for tradeable goods, persisted. By late June, softer inflation prints and limited tariff pass-through led Fed officials and markets to bring forward expectations for rate cuts.
- In the US, economic growth and labour market conditions moderated but remained supportive. In contrast, the macroeconomic outlook outside the US was less favourable. The Fed and Bank of England maintained restrictive monetary policies, though both are expected to ease gradually later this year. The European Central Bank lowered its policy rate in response to more substantial progress toward its inflation target.

What affected the Portfolio's performance during the reporting period

- Contributors to returns:
 - The Portfolio's investment grade and high yield corporate exposures delivered broad-based performance
- Detractors from returns:
 - There were no material detractors from a fixed income sector perspective

Overview of investment activities during the reporting period

- The Portfolio was invested across corporate industries, rating cohorts and developed markets countries.
- At the end of the reporting period, the Portfolio was approximately 80% investment grade rated and 20% below investment grade.

We maintain a constructive outlook on fixed income, favouring shorter durations amid supportive technicals and stable corporate fundamentals. However, unpredictable policy changes could keep the remainder of the year eventful, requiring vigilance. In our view, real economic conditions are mixed across developed countries, but the outlook has improved since mid-April, and investor demand for fixed income remains resilient. This backdrop continues to emphasise the importance of quality, fundamentals-driven relative valuation, and seizing yield and price opportunities.

EMD Corporate – Social and Environmental Transition – Investment Manager's Report

For the six-month reporting period ended 30 June 2025, the total return for the USD I Accumulating Class was 3.75%. Over the same period, the benchmark index, the JP Morgan JESG CEMBI Broad Diversified Index (Total Return, USD) (the Index), returned 4.06%. (Performance data quoted represent past performance and do not indicate future results. Total returns shown are net of all fees and expenses and include the reinvestment of income dividends and other distributions, if any.)

Macroeconomic, market and asset class conditions during the reporting period

- Trade policy in the US was the main market driver while there was also focus on the fiscal trajectory. Geopolitical developments in Ukraine and the Middle East weighed on sentiment.
- Treasury 5-year yields ended the period at 3.80%, down from 4.38% with some volatility in between as the market weighed the impact of tariffs on growth and inflation.
- Emerging markets (EM) benchmark spreads widened, moving to 232 basis points (bps) from 216bps, but only after hitting a peak of 294bps post the announcement of significant tariffs by the US in early April. Ukraine was the best performer with a 0.10% return. This was followed by Iraq, Jamaica, and Morocco. The worst performer, and only country in negative territory, was Ghana at -1.43% given the pressures on oil.

What affected the Portfolio's performance during the reporting period

- Contributors to relative returns:
 - Key performance came from security selection in Mexico, Colombia, and Chile.
 - The underweight exposure to the Philippines also contributed to relative performance.
 - By sector, security selection in consumer, financials, and TMT.
- Detractors from relative returns:
 - By country, the primary detractors were security selection in Brazil including an airline that became distressed, and Ukraine.
 - By sector, positioning in transport and commodities names detracted.

Overview of investment activities during the reporting period

- By country, key changes included adding exposure to Philippines, Peru, Saudi Arabia and Thailand. We trimmed our overweight to Brazil and the UAE. We reduced exposure to Morocco, Mexico, and Turkey.
- By sector, we increased exposure to utilities, oil & gas, TMT, pulp & paper, and infrastructure. We reduced exposure to industrials, consumer, and financials.
- The Portfolio's ESG score exceeded the index, driven by higher-quality holdings. Lower exposure to high-carbon sectors, resulted in a 36% lower carbon intensity than the index. Labelled bond exposure was also higher at 16.7%. Ongoing active engagement has been focused mainly on environmental issues with issuers.

Global markets are likely to remain volatile in the near term due to ongoing uncertainty over US trade negotiations and fiscal concerns. However, risks to EM assets are mitigated by stronger growth than in developed markets, a softer US dollar, improved credit fundamentals, and continued multilateral support. Default risks continue to decline also in EM high yield corporates, and for 2025 we anticipate a 2.9% default rate which is just below the pre-Covid long-term average. Valuations remain expensive for investment grade and BB-rated bonds, while B-rated and lower segments offer value. We see opportunities for spread compression among improving issuers, and off-benchmark bonds notably in the BB-rated segment.

Emerging Market Debt - Hard Currency – Investment Manager's Report

For the six-month reporting period ended 30 June 2025, the total return for the USD I Accumulating Class was 6.13%. Over the same period, the benchmark index, the JPM EMBI Global Diversified Index (Total Return, USD) (the Index), returned 5.64%. (Performance data quoted represent past performance and does not indicate future results. Total returns shown are net of all fees and expenses and include the reinvestment of income dividends and other distributions, if any.)

Macroeconomic, market and asset class conditions during the reporting period

- Trade policy in the US was the main market driver while there was also focus on the fiscal trajectory. Geopolitical developments in Ukraine and the Middle East weighed on sentiment.
- The yield on the US 10-year Treasury ended the period at 4.23%, down from 4.53% with some volatility in between as the market weighed the impact of tariffs on growth and inflation.
- Emerging markets (EM) benchmark spreads were roughly flat, moving to 322 basis points (bps) from 325bps, after reaching a peak of 393bps following the announcement of significant tariffs by the US in early April. Lebanon was the best performer with 46.51% return as its parliament was able to break a two-year political deadlock, confirming a new president and parliament, raising hopes over a resolution to the current default. The worst performer was Senegal at -12.23% as the government announced a significant upward revision to debt and deficit levels.

What affected the Portfolio's performance during the reporting period

- Contributors to relative returns:
 - Country allocation overall, with overweights to high yielding credits such as Ecuador, Lebanon, Zambia, Ghana, and Egypt.
 - Security selection mainly due to euro-denominated exposures.
- Detractors from relative returns:
 - Corporate and curve positioning in Brazil and South Africa.
 - Overweight to El Salvador, which underperformed after a period of strong performance.

Overview of investment activities during the reporting period

- The Portfolio maintained a high yield bias over investment grade (IG) credits. Recent trading activity has been focused on reducing exposure to countries facing increasing financial challenges in a more uncertain world, such as Angola, Panama, Senegal, Turkey and Ukraine, and to countries where we see limited further upside in valuations, such as El Salvador, Indonesia and Serbia.
- We increased exposures to Argentina, Bulgaria and Honduras, where we see a positive reform outlook and resilience to global shocks.
- Allocation to EUR-denominated bonds and corporate bonds was 16.7% and 12.1% respectively at the end of the reporting period.

Global markets are likely to remain volatile in the near term due to ongoing uncertainty over US trade negotiations and fiscal concerns. However, risks to EM assets are mitigated by stronger growth relative to developed markets, a softer US dollar, improved credit fundamentals, and continued multilateral support. Valuations remain expensive for IG and BB-rated bonds, while B-rated and lower segments offer value. We see opportunities for spread compression among improving issuers, and off-benchmark bonds notably in the BB-rated segment.

Emerging Market Debt - Local Currency – Investment Manager's Report

For the six-month reporting period ended 30 June 2025, the total return for the USD I Accumulating Class was 12.83%. Over the same period, the benchmark index, the JP Morgan GBI Emerging Markets Global Diversified Index (Total Return, Unhedged, USD) (the Index), returned 12.26%. (Performance data quoted represent past performance and do not indicate future results. Total returns shown are net of all fees and expenses and include the reinvestment of income dividends and other distributions, if any.)

Macroeconomic, market and asset class conditions during the reporting period

- Trade policy in the US was a main market driver, while geopolitical developments in Ukraine and the Middle East weighed on sentiment.
- The Emerging markets (EM) local currency debt asset class benefited from the weakness in the US dollar, and from a tightening in local bond yields.
- Brazil was the best performing index country with a 27% return, followed by Mexico with a 22% return. Meanwhile Turkey lagged with a 0.1% return, followed by China with a 2.6% return.

What affected the Portfolio's performance during the reporting period

- Contributors to relative returns:
 - The overweight FX and duration in Brazil.
 - Frontier market exposures including Zambia, Egypt and Ghana.
- Detractors from relative returns:
 - Underweights in Mexican peso, Colombian peso, Thai baht and Taiwan dollar.
 - An overweight Turkish lira

Overview of investment activities during the reporting period

- We increased overall EM FX risk and added to the overweight duration, based on our more favourable outlook for the asset class amid the weaker US dollar trend, attractive real yields and scope for EM Central Banks to ease monetary policy.
- We mainly added to high conviction positions in Brazil and South Africa. We also added exposure to Asian and Eastern European currencies, and to opportunities in frontier local markets such as Argentina, Uzbekistan, Kazakhstan, and Uganda.
- Meanwhile we went underweight the Mexican peso on expectations of slowing growth and policy rate cuts and closed our overweight duration in China following notable yield compression.

Global markets are likely to remain volatile in the near term due to ongoing uncertainty over US trade negotiations. However, risks to EM assets are mitigated by stronger growth than in developed markets and improved EM credit fundamentals. Subdued EM inflation, slower global growth, and expected rate cuts by the Federal Reserve should provide room for most EM central banks to maintain a bias towards easing monetary policy. Combined with EM real yields near decade high levels, this should provide a supportive backdrop for EM local currency debt.

Emerging Market Debt Blend – Investment Manager's Report

For the six-month reporting period ended 30 June 2025, the total return for the USD I Accumulating Class was 9.05%. Over the same period, the benchmark index, a blend comprised of a 50% weighting to the JP Morgan GBI Emerging Markets Global Diversified Index (Total Return, Unhedged, USD), a 25% weighting to the JP Morgan EMBI Global Diversified Index (Total Return, USD), and a 25% weighting to the JP Morgan CEMBI Diversified Index (Total Return, USD) (the Index), returned 8.56%. (Performance data quoted represent past performance and do not indicate future results. Total returns shown are net of all fees and expenses and include the reinvestment of income dividends and other distributions, if any.)

Macroeconomic, market and asset class conditions during the reporting period

- Trade policy in the US was a main market driver over the period, while geopolitical developments in Ukraine and the Middle East weighed on sentiment.
- Emerging markets (EM) local currency debt benefited from the weakness in the US dollar, and from a tightening in local bond yields.
- EM hard currency benchmark spreads were roughly flat, but only after hitting a peak of 393 basis point post the announcement of significant tariffs by the US in early April.

What affected the Portfolio's performance during the reporting period

- Contributors to relative returns:
 - Hard currency (HC) sovereign countries driven by overweights to high yielding credits such as Ecuador, Lebanon, Zambia, Ghana, and Egypt. Security selection was a net contributor, mainly due to euro-denominated exposures.
 - Bottom-up positioning in local currency (LC) including the overweight FX and duration in Brazil, followed by frontier market exposures including Zambia, Egypt and Ghana.
 - Bottom-up positioning in corporates from Mexican industrials and across the financials and TMT sectors.
 - Tactical positioning in CDX.EM and the exposure to cash during the bouts of volatility.
- Detractors from relative returns:
 - Bottom-up positioning from HC due to the overweight in Panama and curve positioning in South Africa.
 - Bottom-up positioning in LC from underweights in Mexican peso, Colombian peso, Thai baht, Taiwan dollar and an overweight Turkish lira.
 - Bottom-up positioning in corporates from Brazilian issuers, including an airline that became distressed.

Overview of investment activities during the reporting period

- Tactically moved from underweight LC to an overweight, while maintaining exposure to cash funded by an underweight in corporates. We also moved the developed market interest rate duration exposure to neutral.
- HC maintained a high yield bias over investment grade sovereigns. Recent trading activity has been focused on reducing exposure to countries facing increased financial challenges in a more uncertain world, and in countries where we see limited further upside in valuations. Within corporates, we increased exposure to the utilities and commodities sectors while trimming financials.
- LC increased overall EM FX risk and add to the overweight duration, based on our more favourable outlook for EM amid the weaker US dollar trend, attractive real yields and scope for EM Central Banks to ease monetary policy.

Global markets are likely to remain volatile in the near term due to ongoing uncertainty over US trade negotiations. However, risks to EM assets are mitigated by stronger growth than in developed markets and improved EM credit fundamentals. Subdued EM inflation, slower global growth, and expected rate cuts by the Federal Reserve should provide room for most EM central banks to maintain a bias towards easing monetary policy. Combined with EM real yields near decade high levels, this should provide a supportive backdrop for EM LC debt. Valuations remain expensive for HC investment grade and BB-rated bonds, while B-rated and lower segments offer value. We see opportunities for spread compression among improving issuers, and off-benchmark bonds notably in the BB-rated segment.

Emerging Market Debt Sustainable Investment Grade Blend – Investment Manager's Report

- Emerging markets (EM) local currency (LC) debt benefited from the weakness in the US dollar, and from a tightening in local bond yields.
- EM hard currency (HC) investment grade (IG) benchmark spreads were roughly flat, but only after hitting a peak of 154 basis points post the announcement of significant tariffs by the US in early April.

What affected the Portfolio's performance during the reporting period

- Contributors to relative returns:
 - Bottom-up positioning in HC sovereign countries including the overweight to Mexico and underweight to Qatar, security selection in Indonesia and the Philippines.
 - Bottom-up positioning in local market currencies including the overweight rates and FX in Mexico, Poland and Hungary, and the underweight duration in China.
 - Tactical positioning in CDX.EM and the exposure to cash during the bouts of volatility.
- Detractors from relative returns:
 - Bottom-up positioning in HC from exposure to supranationals and positioning in the UAE and India.
 - Bottom-up positioning in LC from overweight in Colombian rates and underweight in Thai baht and Taiwan dollar.

Overview of investment activities during the reporting period

- Tactically moved from underweight LC to overweight, while maintaining exposure to cash funded by an underweight in HC. We also moved the developed market interest rate duration exposure to neutral.
- HC recent trading activity has been focused on reducing exposure to countries facing increased financial challenges in a more uncertain world, and in countries where we see limited further upside in valuations.
- LC increased the overall EM FX risk and add to the overweight duration, based on our more favourable outlook for EM amid the weaker US dollar trend, attractive real yields and scope for EM Central Banks to ease monetary policy.

Global markets are likely to remain volatile in the near term due to ongoing uncertainty over US trade negotiations. However, risks to EM assets are mitigated by stronger growth than in developed markets and improved EM credit fundamentals. Subdued EM inflation, slower global growth, and expected rate cuts by the Federal Reserve should provide room for most EM central banks to maintain a bias towards easing monetary policy. Combined with EM real yields near decade high levels, this should provide a supportive backdrop for EM LC debt. Valuations remain expensive for HC IG bonds. We see opportunities for spread compression among improving issuers, and off-benchmark bonds.

Emerging Markets Equity – Investment Manager's Report

For the six-month reporting period ended 30 June 2025, the total return for the USD I Accumulating Class was 16.25%. Over the same period, the benchmark index, the MSCI Emerging Markets Index (Total Return, Net of Tax, USD) (the Index), returned 15.27%. (Performance data quoted represent past performance and do not indicate future results. Total returns shown are net of all fees and expenses and include the reinvestment of income dividends and other distributions, if any.)

Macroeconomic, market and asset class conditions during the reporting period

- Emerging markets (EM) equities outperformed most developed markets indices in the first half, as investor distress about harsh US trade rhetoric along with the potential for an expanding war in the Middle East declined over the period. Both quarters were positive for the EM asset class.
- Within the Index, Communications Services, Industrials, and Financials benefited as sentiment improved. Real Estate, Consumer Staples and Utilities lagged, though all Index sectors closed up.
- The top performing individual markets within the Index were Greece, Poland and Colombia. Thailand, Turkey and Indonesia declined most.

What affected the Portfolio's performance during the reporting period

- Contributors to relative returns:
 - Stock selection was the primary driver of the Portfolio's relative performance, with the Financials, IT, and Consumer Staples sectors adding most value.
 - By country, holdings in Brazil and off-benchmark holdings in Hong Kong and US-listed EM-linked names contributed most to relative returns.
- Detractors from relative returns:
 - By sector, the Portfolio's Materials, Real Estate and Industrials names detracted.
 - By country, our holdings in India, South Africa and a non-Index Japanese name with an EM customer base were a headwind.

Overview of investment activities during the reporting period

- Overall positioning has remained fairly consistent over the period, with IT innovators and Industrials remaining among overweights, at the expense of the more cyclical Financials and Materials segments.
- By country, India is a clear favourite, funded by a comparative deficit in China.

The overarching geopolitical situation this period created turbulence within EM markets despite top-line positive returns. As we look ahead, the team has been closely following trends and data, adapting positioning by trimming winners approaching their near-term price targets, and adding to names we view as unduly punished. The team continues to believe that positioning favouring select growth segments with a lighter exposure to cyclical names could benefit comparative returns in the period ahead.

Euro Bond – Investment Manager's Report

For the six-month reporting period ended 30 June 2025, the total return for the EUR I Accumulating Class was 1.30%. Over the same period, the Bloomberg Euro Aggregate Index (Total Return, Hedged, EUR) (the Index), returned 0.84%. (Performance data quoted represent past performance and do not indicate future results. Total returns shown are net of all fees and expenses and include the reinvestment of income dividends and other distributions, if any.)

Macroeconomic, market and asset class conditions during the reporting period

- Global fixed income and risk assets delivered strong returns in the second quarter, supported by resilient investor demand, attractive yields, and stable corporate fundamentals, with notable outperformance in spread sectors and equity indices (i.e. S&P 500 and Euro Stoxx 50) in May and June.
- Macro conditions remained resilient despite persistent but easing tariff and geopolitical uncertainty; government bond yields were volatile but trended lower by period end, while central banks (notably the European Central Bank) adopted cautious, data-dependent policy stances amid moderating inflation.
- Corporate fundamentals across investment grade and high yield remained stable, though idiosyncratic risks are rising; companies are focused on cost control, and bottom-up credit selection remains key as the outlook for spreads and macro policy stays fluid.

What affected the Portfolio's performance during the reporting period

- Contributors to relative returns:
 - Security selection was the primary driver to returns 54 basis points (bps)
 - Our positions across credit (both Financials and Industrials) have been key contributors, alongside our government allocations, in particular European peripheries.
- Detractors from relative returns:
 - Sector allocation was a small detractor (-7bps)

Overview of investment activities during the reporting period

- We actively positioned duration over the period, moving shorter over the first quarter before adding back to sell-offs in the second quarter. We ended the period at around 6.74 years.
- We remained defensively positioned in credit, selectively adding to higher beta names whilst maintaining high quality exposure overall, with a continued focus on fundamentals.

On a 3-year and since inception basis, the Portfolio is in the top decile of performers, and we remain confident that over the long-term our investment strategy should continue to deliver attractive returns against both peers and the benchmark in a risk-controlled environment. Our focus on fundamental credit selection, supported by active duration management and primary market activity are all essential aspects of our investment philosophy and process which we believe will continue to play a pivotal role in this ever-changing market backdrop. As rate cutting cycles continue across the US, Europe and UK, yields continue to remain at attractive levels, with the investable universe bolstered by higher coupons, which should bolster performance from a carry perspective even in the face of further rate market rallies.

Euro Bond Absolute Return – Investment Manager's Report

For the six-month reporting period ended 30 June 2025, the total return for the EUR I Accumulating Class was 2.11%. Over the same period, the ICE BofA 0-1 Year AAA Euro Government Index (Total Return, EUR) (the Index), returned 1.20%. (Performance data quoted represent past performance and do not indicate future results. Total returns shown are net of all fees and expenses and include the reinvestment of income dividends and other distributions, if any.)

Macroeconomic, market and asset class conditions during the reporting period

- Global fixed income and risk assets delivered strong returns in the second quarter, supported by resilient investor demand, attractive yields, and stable corporate fundamentals, with notable outperformance in spread sectors and equity indices in May and June.
- Macro conditions remained resilient despite persistent but easing tariff and geopolitical uncertainty; government bond yields were volatile but trended lower by period end, while central banks (notably the European Central Bank) adopted cautious, data-dependent policy stances amid moderating inflation.
- Corporate fundamentals across investment grade and high yield remained stable, though idiosyncratic risks are rising; companies are focused on cost control, and bottom-up credit selection remains key as the outlook for spreads and macro policy stays fluid.

What affected the Portfolio's performance during the reporting period

- Contributors to absolute returns:
 - Corporate financials, primarily real estate names (around 45 basis points (bps)). Names such as Heimstadten, CPI Group, Dovalue, Alstria and Unicredit were notable additives.
 - Corporate industrials (approximately 21bps), particularly Consumer Cyclical and Utilities. Motability, ZF, Ceconomy, Accorinvest, Southern Electric and Enel were some of the top performers.
 - The government and government related bucket, a large share of the Portfolio, contributed approximately 107bps. FX was also additive (32bps).
 - Covered bonds, particularly from Scandinavian and Australian issuers such as Nykredit, Westpac, and Commonwealth Bank of Australia.
- Detractors from absolute returns:
 - While corporate industrials were additive overall, transportation was a slight detractor.
 - Duration was a detractor from Covered, Government, and Corporate Credit positions.

Overview of investment activities during the reporting period

- We realised profit on some of our steepened duration positions. After increasing our credit risk in response to market weakness in April, we have since scaled back credit risk, particularly in non-investment grade credit.
- We held a positive view on periphery and Eastern European countries in terms of relative value and added to these positions accordingly. In terms of core exposure, we added to European Union issuance such as France and Germany.

Our focus on credit selection, supported by active duration management and primary market activity which are all essential aspects of our investment philosophy will continue to play a pivotal role in this ever-changing market backdrop. As rate cutting cycles continue across the US, Europe and UK, yields continue to remain at attractive levels, with the investable universe bolstered by higher coupons, which should bolster performance from a carry perspective even in the face of uncertainty, volatility, or further rate market rallies.

European High Yield Bond – Investment Manager's Report

For the six-month reporting period ended 30 June 2025, the total return for the EUR I Accumulating Class was 2.42%. Over the same period, the benchmark index, the ICE BofA European Currency Non-Financial High Yield 3% Constrained Index (Total Return, EUR) (the Index), returned 2.74%. (Performance data quoted represent past performance and do not indicate future results. Total returns shown are net of all fees and expenses and include the reinvestment of income dividends and other distributions, if any.)

Macroeconomic, market and asset class conditions during the reporting period

- The first half of 2025 delivered positive returns across fixed income markets, primarily driven by coupon income amid generally stable economic data. Spread sectors ended the period with spreads only slightly changed from the start of the year despite a brief volatility spike after the 2 April US tariff announcement. The subsequent delay in implementation enabled the US to pursue specific trade deals, after which markets resumed a risk-on stance.
- With spreads beginning the period toward the tighter end of their historical range, there is scope for disappointment should events weigh on the economic outlook, especially here in Europe. Recently announced stimulus measures, centered on European rearmament, should help boost growth and sentiment, but may be overshadowed by tariff effects, which in turn may pose challenges for central bank policy.
- The Bank of England has maintained restrictive monetary policies, though they are expected to ease gradually later this year. The European Central Bank has continued to lower its policy rate, reflecting more substantial progress toward its inflation target.

What affected the Portfolio's performance during the reporting period

- Contributors to absolute returns:
 - From a sector perspective, positioning in Support-Services, Technology & Electronics and Health Care contributed the most.
 - From a ratings perspective, positioning in B, CCC & below, Not Rated and BBB & above rated issuers added the most.
- Detractors from absolute returns:
 - From a sector perspective, positioning in Energy, Food & Drug Retail and Telecommunications detracted the most.
 - From a ratings perspective, the top detractor came from security selection in BB rated issuers.

Overview of investment activities during the reporting period

- In our high yield strategies, we rotated selectively into BB's where prices remained attractive to underlying fundamentals and default expectations were low.
- We reduced CCC & below and B rated issuers and positioning in CCC's is where we had a differentiated view of the individual credits based on our proprietary ratings and analyst views on the individual credits. We also focused on swapping within industries and risk cohorts of the market to maximise resilience from the impact of tariffs.
- Our plan was to center the Portfolio primarily around BB and higher-quality B credit risk (based on our internal credit ratings) and overweight sectors that we viewed as resilient in the current environment.

We believe European high yield valuations are providing more-than-adequate compensation for the around average default outlook, will continue to provide durable income and are attractive compared to other fixed income alternatives. While the incoming macroeconomic data, policy uncertainty over tariffs, geopolitical concerns and overall credit cycle dynamics can move the high yield market day-to-day, our analysts and portfolio managers continue to be focused on the specific fundamentals of individual issuers, with analysts assessing the base and downside cases. We believe our bottom-up, fundamental credit research that focuses on security selection, avoiding credit deterioration, and putting only what we view as our "best ideas" into Portfolios, will position us well to take advantage of any volatility.

European Sustainable Equity – Investment Manager's Report

For the six-month reporting period ended 30 June 2025, the total return for the EUR I Accumulating Class was 0.53%. Over the same period, the benchmark index, the MSCI Europe Index (Total Return, Net of Tax, EUR) (the Index), returned 8.55%. (Performance data quoted represent past performance and do not indicate future results. Total returns shown are net of all fees and expenses and include the reinvestment of income dividends and other distributions, if any.)

Macroeconomic, market and asset class conditions during the reporting period

- Global markets experienced elevated volatility, driven by persistent uncertainty around US trade policy and shifting expectations for monetary policy.
- Developed market equities delivered positive returns, supported by strong fiscal measures in Europe and resilient earnings from mega-cap technology companies.
- US equity markets were unsettled by tariff-related headlines, while the Federal Reserve (Fed) maintained interest rates and Treasury yields declined, reflecting concerns about growth risks.

What affected the Portfolio's performance during the reporting period

- Contributors to relative returns:
 - At a stock level, our holdings in 3i Group, Euronext (Financials), CVS Group (Access to Healthcare), Scout24 and Spotify (Communication Services) contributed most to performance.
 - The result from sector allocation was neutral, with an underweight in the Energy sector contributing due to declining oil prices.
- Detractors from relative returns:
 - Our holdings in Novo Nordisk (Healthcare), Beiersdorf, Bakkafrøst (Consumer Staples), Partners Group and London Stock Exchange Group (Financials) were the largest detractors.
 - Underweight positions in European banks and defense stocks detracted from performance, as both sub-sectors delivered very strong returns. An overweight in the Health Care sector and an underweight in Utilities detracted.

Overview of investment activities during the reporting period

- The Portfolio exited life science tool maker Tecan (Access to Healthcare) due to sales uncertainty because of US policy uncertainties, and IT consultancy firm Netcompany (Digital Enterprise), where concerns over revenue visibility and mergers and acquisition integration risks prompted the sale.
- Proceeds from these exits were redeployed across existing holdings, with a defensive approach that prioritised resilience and reduced exposure to operationally challenged companies.
- A new position was initiated in Hexagon (Digital Enterprise), a Swedish specialist in factory automation and digital reality solutions, selected for its strong market position and growth prospects.

Global equity markets are grappling with heightened uncertainty. Escalating trade tensions, fuelled by sweeping US tariffs, have sparked fears of retaliation and a potential trade war. These developments have triggered significant volatility, raising concerns about global growth, inflation, and corporate earnings. Our Portfolio is well-positioned to benefit from this as it consists of a diversified pool of high-quality, resilient companies whose focus on sustainability reinforces their competitive advantage.

Event Driven – Investment Manager's Report

For the six-month reporting period ended 30 June 2025, the total return for the USD I Accumulating Class was 5.43%. (Performance data quoted represent past performance and do not indicate future results. Total returns shown are net of all fees and expenses and include the reinvestment of income dividends and other distributions, if any.)

Macroeconomic, market and asset class conditions during the reporting period

- To start the year, markets expressed optimism that a Trump administration would lead to meaningful deregulation, lower taxes, a robust IPO market, and increased mergers and acquisitions (M&A). This was somewhat short lived as tariff rhetoric leading up to "Liberation Day" drove significant uncertainty in policy direction and market volatility. As markets sold off, M&A and IPO activity ground to a halt despite significant pent-up demand.
- As the administration's policy stance softened, markets have bought into the notion that the US will negotiate back from the extremes. Markets have recovered, volatility has come down and M&A and IPO activity have resumed.
- Macroeconomic uncertainty and reasonable levels of volatility can be healthy for the strategy as it creates opportunities for companies to pursue a range of corporate activities to drive value in an environment where management teams cannot rely on market driven multiple expansion. As we run the Portfolio market neutral, periods of volatility allow us to identify opportunities on both the long and short side.

What affected the Portfolio's performance during the reporting period

- Contributors to absolute returns:
 - Market Neutral Catalyst, Merger Arbitrage and Equity Capital Markets (a subset of Catalyst) have all contributed positively
 - Philip Morris (Catalyst), General Electric (Catalyst), Heico Corp (Catalyst), Tempus AI (Catalyst), and API Group (Catalyst)
- Detractors from absolute returns:
 - FTAI Aviation (Catalyst), Fiserv (Catalyst), Saia (Catalyst), International Paper (Catalyst), and Citigroup (Catalyst)

Overview of investment activities during the reporting period

- A number of situations that we were involved in last year progressed in the first couple of months of the year generating positive returns. From March through May we took advantage of that volatility in our Merger Arbitrage strategy to add exposure to the Portfolio as spreads widened. As discussed above, deal volumes began to pick up as the volatility subsided and they appear to be accelerating. Several situations have come off the book as the deals closed, but we expect exposure to continue to rise in the second half of the year as the M&A volumes improve.
- In the Market Neutral Catalyst strategy, we realised profits on a number of ideas across a variety of sectors as the theses we identified played out. As volatility increased and de-risking activity drove a random pattern of stock behavior, we continued to reduce risk to protect investor capital and managed this period effectively. Since April exposure has continued to rise as the volatility allowed us to identify several new situations and add back to some of the aforesaid de-risked positions.

We continue to believe the outlook for event driven is attractive heading into the second half of 2025 and there should be opportunities to capitalise across all three strategies. Our current view is that volumes in M&A and Equity Capital Markets will continue to accelerate heading into the fall. While markets have embraced the outlook that everything will be "OK" and the range of potential outcomes appears to have narrowed meaningfully over the past several months, uncertainty remains high and volatility could return. Either way, we remain confident in our ability to protect capital and find idiosyncratic investment opportunities amidst the volatility.

Global Bond – Investment Manager's Report

For the six-month reporting period ended 30 June 2025, the total return for the USD I Accumulating Class was 7.31%. Over the same period, the benchmark index, the Bloomberg Global Aggregate Index (Total Return, Unhedged, USD) (the Index), returned 7.27%. (Performance data quoted represent past performance and do not indicate future results. Total returns shown are net of all fees and expenses and include the reinvestment of income dividends and other distributions, if any.)

Macroeconomic, market and asset class conditions during the reporting period

- The first half of 2025 delivered positive returns across fixed income markets, driven primarily by coupon income amid generally stable economic data. Spread sectors ended the period with spreads only slightly changed from the start of year, despite a brief spike in volatility following the announcement of a new US tariff policy on 2 April. The subsequent delay in implementation enabled the US to pursue specific trade deals, after which markets resumed a risk-on stance.
- In the first half of 2025, the Federal Reserve (Fed) held its policy rate steady amid uncertainty from new tariffs and their potential inflation effects. Although markets initially delayed rate cut expectations into 2026, subdued inflation data, particularly for tradeable goods, persisted. By late June, softer inflation prints and limited tariff pass-through led Fed officials and markets to bring forward expectations for rate cuts.
- In the US, economic growth and labour market conditions moderated but remained supportive. In contrast, the macroeconomic outlook outside the US is less favourable. The Fed and Bank of England maintained restrictive monetary policies, though both are expected to ease gradually later this year. The European Central Bank lowered its policy rate, in response to more substantial progress toward its inflation target.

What affected the Portfolio's performance during the reporting period

- Contributors to relative returns:
 - Overweight to US rates and underweight in Chinese yuan
 - Security selection in global nominal government securities
 - Security selection in and overweight exposure to global securitised credit and emerging market debt
- Detractors from relative returns:
 - Security selection in global investment grade
 - Overweight to Japanese yen and British pound sterling
 - Underweight to China and Japan rates

Overview of investment activities during the reporting period

- Over the period we primarily increased exposure to investment grade credit, emerging market debt and selectively to high yield. We reduced exposure to global government securities, securitised credit and agency mortgage-backed securities.
- We reduced the Portfolio's duration by approximately 0.04 of a year.

We maintain a constructive outlook on fixed income, favouring shorter durations and active credit selection amid supportive technicals and stable corporate fundamentals. However, unpredictable policy changes could keep the remainder of the year eventful, requiring vigilance. In our view, real economic conditions are mixed across developed countries, but the outlook has improved since mid-April, and investor demand for fixed income remains resilient. This backdrop continues to emphasise the importance of quality, fundamentals-driven relative valuation, and seizing yield and price opportunities.

Global Equity Megatrends – Investment Manager's Report

For the six-month reporting period ended 30 June 2025, the total return for the USD I Accumulating Class was 9.01%. Over the same period, the benchmark index, the MSCI World Index (Total Return, Net of Tax, USD) (the Index), returned 9.47%. (Performance data quoted represent past performance and do not indicate future results. Total returns shown are net of all fees and expenses and include the reinvestment of income dividends and other distributions, if any.)

Macroeconomic, market and asset class conditions during the reporting period

- Global equity markets were particularly volatile during the period as the US continued resetting the terms of global trade and geopolitical tension escalated further.
- Geopolitical conflict unfortunately escalated, particularly in the Middle East, but following a highly elevated period of tension, we are now encouraged to see increased dialogue among key nations involved.
- Finally, efforts to mend US fiscal and debt sustainability seem to be falling short of what is needed, but it is certainly positive that policy makers finally prioritise this increasingly urgent matter.

What affected the Portfolio's performance during the reporting period

- Contributors to relative returns:
 - Pets At Home, Vistra Corp., ATI Inc.
- Detractors from relative returns:
 - Criteo, ModivCare, Delta Airlines

Overview of investment activities during the reporting period

- Exited our position in Despegar.com when it was taken private
- Exited our position in Scholastic
- Initiated a new position in Charles River Labs
- Initiated a new position in Wuxi Biologics
- Initiated a new position in Shift4 payments

Global equity markets are likely to remain volatile as global trade negotiations continue, and geopolitical tensions persist. In this context, the Portfolio currently trades at 16x free cash flow, a significant discount to global equity indices (MSCI World index at 28x). This valuation reflects a high degree of forward uncertainty for a portfolio that is positioned to potentially grow free cash flow at 24% annually through 2027, a healthy rate. This setup provides an encouraging foundation in an investment environment where discipline and selectivity should be rewarded.

Over the coming weeks we will begin to receive second quarter earnings reports from the Portfolio's companies. We believe the Portfolio is well positioned to withstand a more challenging macro environment, to the extent it was to unfold.

Global Flexible Credit Income – Investment Manager's Report

For the six-month reporting period ended 30 June 2025, the total return for the USD I Accumulating Class was 4.59%. (Performance data quoted represent past performance and do not indicate future results. Total returns shown are net of all fees and expenses and include the reinvestment of income dividends and other distributions, if any.)

Macroeconomic, market and asset class conditions during the reporting period

The European Central Bank lowered its policy rate in response to more substantial progress toward its inflation target.

What affected the Portfolio's performance during the reporting period

- Contributors to absolute returns:
 - High yield, duration positioning, hybrids, emerging market debt, senior floating rate loans, collateralised loan obligations (CLOs), alternative credit and securitised credit were the largest contributors
 - Exposure to investment grade credit was a secondary contributor
- Detractors from absolute returns:
 - There were no material detractors from total returns over the period.

Overview of investment activities during the reporting period

- The Portfolio was invested across credit sectors, rating cohorts and geographies.
- We reduced exposure to euro and pound sterling, emerging market debt, bank loans, CLOs and credit risk transfers, and we added exposure to high yield and slightly to pan-European investment grade credit.
- The Portfolio's duration shortened by 0.12 of a year over the period.

We maintain a constructive outlook on fixed income, favouring shorter durations and active credit selection amid supportive technicals and stable corporate fundamentals. However, unpredictable policy changes could keep the remainder of the year eventful, requiring vigilance. In our view, real economic conditions are mixed across developed countries, but the outlook has improved since mid-April, and investor demand for fixed income remains resilient. This backdrop continues to emphasise the importance of quality, fundamentals-driven relative valuation, and seizing yield and price opportunities.

Global High Yield Engagement – Investment Manager's Report

For the six-month reporting period ended 30 June 2025, the total return for the USD I Accumulating Class was 4.30%. Over the same period, the benchmark index, the ICE BofA Global High Yield Constrained Index (Total Return, Hedged, USD) (the Index), returned 4.37%. (Performance data quoted represent past performance and do not indicate future results. Total returns shown are net of all fees and expenses and include the reinvestment of income dividends and other distributions, if any.)

Macroeconomic, market and asset class conditions during the reporting period

- The global high yield bond market finished the first half of 2025 with solid returns driven by resilient economic growth and despite concerns of stickier inflation from higher tariffs. Credit spreads broadly tightened over the period, reflecting better than expected economic performance, stable fundamentals and steady demand for credit assets.
- Outside of the higher risk Eastern European and China Property sectors, global high yield issuers' aggregate fundamentals of Earnings Before Interest, Tax, Depreciation and Amortisation (EBITDA) growth, free cash flow, interest coverage and leverage remained in somewhat favourable ranges.
- Default rates in the US, Europe and other developed markets have been well below their historical averages over the reporting period. While emerging markets (EM) defaults have risen from lower levels, we are focused on select opportunities away from the higher risk regions and sectors.

What affected the Portfolio's performance during the reporting period

- Contributors to relative returns
 - From a sector perspective, positioning in Gas Distribution, Support-Services and Diversified Financial Services contributed the most to performance over the period.
 - From a ratings perspective, security selection in B and CCC & below rated issuers added the most to performance over the period.
- Detractors from relative returns
 - From a sector perspective, positioning in Energy, Real Estate & Homebuilders and Chemicals detracted the most from performance over the period.
 - From a ratings perspective, positioning and security selection in BB rated issuers detracted the most from performance.

Overview of investment activities during the reporting period

- In our high yield strategies, we rotated selectively into BB rated issuers where prices remained attractive to underlying fundamentals and default expectations were low.
- While we reduced CCC & below, positioning in CCC rated issuers is where we had a differentiated view of the individual credits based on our proprietary ratings and analyst views on the individual credits. We also focused on swapping within industries and risk cohorts of the market to maximise resilience to the impact from tariffs.
- Our plan was to centre the Portfolio primarily around BB and higher-quality B credit risk (based on our internal credit ratings) and overweight sectors that we viewed as resilient in the current environment. The Portfolio also has a slight overweight to BBB & above.

We believe high yield valuations are providing more than adequate compensation for the around average default outlook, should continue to provide durable income. Our outlook for around average default risk is based on our bottom-up assessment of issuers and driven by the higher-quality ratings mix in global high yield (60% of issuers with credit ratings of BB), less aggressive new issuance, fewer near-term maturities, as well as an energy sector that is far healthier than in the past few cycles. While the incoming macroeconomic data, future policy uncertainty of the Trump administration, geopolitical concerns and overall credit cycle dynamics can move the high yield market day-to-day, our analysts continue to be focused on the specific fundamentals of individual issuers, with analysts assessing the base and downside cases. We believe our bottom-up, fundamental credit research that focuses on security selection, avoiding credit deterioration, and putting only what we view as our "best ideas" into Portfolios, will position us well to take advantage of any volatility.

Global Investment Grade Credit – Investment Manager's Report

For the six-month reporting period ended 30 June 2025, the total return for the USD I Accumulating Class was 3.62%. Over the same period, the Bloomberg Global Aggregate Corporate Index (Total Return, Hedged, USD) (the Index), returned 3.79%. (Performance data quoted represent past performance and do not indicate future results. Total returns shown are net of all fees and expenses and include the reinvestment of income dividends and other distributions, if any.)

Macroeconomic, market and asset class conditions during the reporting period

- The first six months of 2025 generated positive returns for the fund largely driven by coupon income and slightly tighter spreads supported by generally stable economic data. Market volatility during the first half occurred largely due to the 2 April announcement of tariff rates on US trading partners, which the implementation was subsequently delayed allowing the US administration to negotiate bespoke trade deals.
- Markets pushed forward expectations of Federal Reserve (Fed) policy rates cuts into 2026 given expectations that recently implemented tariffs on key trading partners will result in a pick-up in US inflation. As of the first half of the year, US consumer price inflation data has yet to show a material pick up in tradeable goods inflation.
- In the US, growth and the labour market are slowing but remain supportive. Outside the US, the macroeconomic outlook remains less favourable than the US. The Fed and Bank of England have continued to maintain restrictive monetary policy even though they are both expected to continue to ease at a gradual pace later this year. The European Central Bank continues to lower its policy rate based on more material progress on inflation in line with its target.

What affected the Portfolio's performance during the reporting period

- Contributors to relative returns:
 - Senior unsecured bonds from real estate, consumer non-cyclical, basics and banking drove performance.
 - Corporate hybrid bonds from the Utility and Real Estate sectors also made a positive contribution.
- Detractors from relative returns:
 - The Communication, Utility and Energy sectors detracted from performance.

Overview of investment activities during the reporting period

- We participated in a number of attractively priced primary new issue deals during the reporting period which generated a strong relative performance for the Portfolio. Our core holdings in the Real Estate and Financial sectors also added to performance.
- Portfolio duration position was maintained slightly above Index levels largely due to corporate bond holdings in in euro and sterling credit.

Heading into the second half of 2025, we remain overweight some of the more defensive sectors like Utilities and Banking while reducing some of our exposure to higher beta and cyclical sectors. We continue to be overweight sectors that have strong fundamentals and are currently in deleveraging mode like Communication Services, which we believe will continue to benefit from a moderating rate backdrop. We have started to reduce our exposure to real estate issuers given their strong relative outperformance in 2024. We have an underweight in sectors like consumer non-cyclicals that we view as being at a higher risk of using debt to finance shareholder returns via stock buybacks and merger and acquisition and trade at relatively tight valuations.

Global Opportunistic Bond – Investment Manager's Report

For the six-month reporting period ended 30 June 2025, the total return for the USD I Accumulating Class was 3.20%. Over the same period, the benchmark index, the Bloomberg Global Aggregate Index (Total Return, Hedged, USD) (the Index), returned 2.81%. (Performance data quoted represent past performance and do not indicate future results. Total returns shown are net of all fees and expenses and include the reinvestment of income dividends and other distributions, if any.)

Although markets initially delayed rate cut expectations into 2026, subdued inflation data, particularly for tradeable goods, persisted. By July, softer inflation prints and limited tariff pass-through led Fed officials and markets to bring forward expectations for rate cuts.
- In the US, economic growth and labor market conditions are moderating but remain supportive. In contrast, the macroeconomic outlook outside the US is less favourable. The Fed and Bank of England have maintained restrictive monetary policies, though both are expected to ease gradually later this year. The European Central Bank has continued to lower its policy rate, reflecting more substantial progress toward its inflation target.

What affected the Portfolio's performance during the reporting period

- Contributors to relative returns:
 - Duration
 - Positioning in global non-investment grade credit and emerging market debt
 - Currency overlay was additive, driven by an overweight in the euro and underweight in the Chinese yuan; also positioning in core Europe, Mexican and UK rates added to relative performance
- Detractors from relative returns:
 - Underweight positioning in China, US and Japan
 - Overweight in Japanese yen
 - Secondary detractors included security selection in global investment grade and an allocation to global government securities

Overview of investment activities during the reporting period

- We increased exposure to investment grade credit and non-US DM government bonds, and we reduced exposure to emerging market debt, high yield and slightly reduced agency MBS.
- Duration was shortened by 0.25 of a year over the period.

We maintain a constructive outlook on fixed income, favouring shorter durations and active credit selection amid supportive technicals and stable corporate fundamentals. However, unpredictable policy changes could keep the remainder of the year eventful, requiring vigilance. Real economic conditions are mixed across developed countries, but the outlook has improved since mid-April, and investor demand for fixed income remains resilient. This backdrop continues to emphasise the importance of quality, fundamentals-driven relative valuation, and seizing yield and price opportunities.

Global Sustainable Equity – Investment Manager's Report

For the six-month reporting period ended 30 June 2025, the total return for the USD I Accumulating Class was 7.99%. Over the same period, the benchmark index, the MSCI World Index (Total Return, Net of Tax, USD) (the Index), returned 9.47%. (Performance data quoted represent past performance and do not indicate future results. Total returns shown are net of all fees and expenses and include the reinvestment of income dividends and other distributions, if any.)

Macroeconomic, market and asset class conditions during the reporting period

- Global markets experienced elevated volatility, driven by persistent uncertainty around US trade policy and shifting expectations for monetary policy.
- Developed market equities delivered positive returns, supported by strong fiscal measures in Europe and resilient earnings from mega-cap technology companies.
- US equity markets were unsettled by tariff-related headlines, while the Federal Reserve (Fed) maintained interest rates and Treasury yields declined, reflecting concerns about growth risks.

What affected the Portfolio's performance during the reporting period

- Contributors to relative performance:
 - At a stock level, our holdings in 3i Group (Financials), Spotify, Netflix (Communication Services), Uber (Industrials), and Microsoft (Information Technology) contributed most to performance.
 - The result from sector allocation was neutral, with a positive contribution from the Financials sector.
- Detractors from relative performance:
 - Our holdings in Bakkafrøst (Consumer Staples), Recruit (Industrials), Alphabet (Communication Services), UnitedHealth Group and Thermo Fisher Scientific (Health Care) were the largest detractors.
 - Stock selection within, as well as an overweight to Health Care detracted from performance due to uncertainty regarding the new US administration's policies and rapidly rising medical costs, which negatively impacted health insurers' profits.

Overview of investment activities during the reporting period

- The Portfolio exited several holdings due to valuation concerns, slow growth, or elevated risks, including Moody's Corporation (Fintech & Financial Inclusion), Nordson (Digital Enterprise), and Nike (Conscious Consumer).
- We initiated several positions in companies with high recurring revenues, such as hard discounter Dollarama (Conscious Consumer), financial markets data/infrastructure provider London Stock Exchange Group (Fintech & Financial Inclusion), and chip-design software maker Synopsys (Digital Enterprise).
- Additional positions were initiated in companies with a strong pipeline of new product launches, most notably dermatology leader Galderma (Access to Healthcare) and video game console and software maker Nintendo (Conscious Consumer).

Global equity markets are grappling with heightened uncertainty. Escalating trade tensions, fuelled by sweeping US tariffs, have sparked fears of retaliation and a potential trade war. These developments have triggered significant volatility, raising concerns about global growth, inflation, and corporate earnings. Our Portfolio is well-positioned to benefit from this as it consists of a diversified pool of high-quality, resilient companies whose focus on sustainability reinforces their competitive advantage.

Global Value – Investment Manager's Report

For the six-month reporting period ended 30 June 2025, the total return for the USD I Accumulating Class was 10.49%. Over the same period, the MSCI All Country World Value Index (Total Return, Net of Tax, USD) (Primary Index) and the MSCI All Country World Index (ACWI) (Total Return, Net of Tax, USD) (Secondary Index), returned 10.88% and 10.05%, respectively. (Performance data quoted represent past performance and do not indicate future results. Total returns shown are net of all fees and expenses and include the reinvestment of income dividends and other distributions, if any.)

Macroeconomic, market and asset class conditions during the reporting period

- US stocks had a sharp sell-off followed by a strong rebound due to the roll out and subsequent roll back the Trump administration's global trade tariffs. These tariffs were announced on April 2, dubbed "Liberation Day" and largely paused until July. There remains a high level of uncertainty for US companies that engage in global trade.
- International and emerging markets outpaced US markets with robust recoveries in the latter half of the period reflecting positive investor sentiment around increased fiscal stimulus in Europe and China's resilient tech sector.
- Macroeconomic uncertainty remained high throughout this period with central banks diverging on interest rate policy. The Federal Reserve (Fed) continued its rate pause, the Bank of England cut rates in 2 out of 4 meetings, while the European Central Bank cut rates at all four meetings this year.

What affected the Portfolio's performance during the reporting period

- Contributors to relative returns:
 - Security selection in Health Care
 - Security selection in Consumer Discretionary
 - Overweight to Communication Services
- Detractors from relative returns:
 - Security selection in Communication Services
 - Security selection in Information Technology
 - Underweight in Financials

Overview of investment activities during the reporting period

- The Portfolio continued to overweight the Information Technology sector with exposure focused on Hardware and Semiconductor industries, where we find most Value candidates within the sector.
- The Portfolio has continued to invest in high-quality value stocks as evidenced by better quality and value metrics, such as return on equity and price-to-earnings, compared to the MSCI ACWI Value Index.

We see the current market environment as favourable for global value stocks as evidenced by the first half of 2025. Our stance is that the historic trade-off between interest rates and inflation has returned, and this will help the positioning in our Portfolio that favours attractively priced, profitable companies. In addition, against a backdrop of possible credit tightening and uncertain trade environment, we are of the view that the Portfolio's focus on good capital discipline may also accrue benefit.

High Yield Bond – Investment Manager's Report

For the six-month reporting period ended 30 June 2025, the total return for the USD I Accumulating Class was 4.44%. Over the same period, the benchmark index, the ICE BofA US High Yield Constrained Index (Total Return, USD) (the Index), returned 4.55%. (Performance data quoted represent past performance and do not indicate future results. Total returns shown are net of all fees and expenses and include the reinvestment of income dividends and other distributions, if any.)

Macroeconomic, market and asset class conditions during the reporting period

- The high yield bond market finished the reporting period with solid returns driven by resilient economic growth and despite concerns of stickier inflation from higher tariffs. Credit spreads broadly tightened over the period, reflecting better than expected economic performance, stable fundamentals and steady demand for credit assets.
- High yield issuers' aggregate fundamentals of Earnings Before Interest, Tax, Depreciation and Amortisation (EBITDA) growth, free cash flow, interest coverage and leverage remained in somewhat favourable ranges.
- While the default rate has risen off the lows in 2022, it has remained in a range that is well below the long-term historical averages.

What affected the Portfolio's performance during the reporting period

- Contributors to relative returns
 - From a sector perspective, security selection in Gas Distribution, Super Retail and Diversified Financial Services contributed the most to performance over the period.
 - From a ratings perspective, security selection in B and CCC & below rated issuers added the most to performance over the period.
- Detractors from relative returns
 - From a sector perspective, positioning in Super Retail, Technology & Electronics and Food, Beverage & Tobacco detracted the most from performance over the period.
 - From a ratings perspective, positioning in BB and CCC rated issuers detracted the most from performance, but it was more than offset by security selection.

Overview of investment activities during the reporting period

- In our high yield strategies, we rotated selectively into BB's where prices remained attractive to underlying fundamentals and default expectations were low.
- While we reduced exposure to CCC & below, positioning in CCC's is where we had a differentiated view of the individual credits based on our proprietary ratings and analyst views on the individual credits. We also focused on swapping within industries and risk cohorts of the market to maximise resilience to the impact from tariffs.
- Our plan was to centre the Portfolio primarily around BB and higher-quality B credit risk (based on our internal credit ratings) and overweight sectors that we viewed as resilient in the current environment.

We believe high yield valuations are providing more-than-adequate compensation for the around average default outlook, should continue to provide durable income. While the incoming macroeconomic data, future policy uncertainty of Trump administration, geopolitical concerns and overall credit cycle dynamics can move the high yield market day-to-day, our analysts continue to be focused on the specific fundamentals of individual issuers, with analysts assessing the base and downside cases. We believe our bottom-up, fundamental credit research that focuses on security selection, avoiding credit deterioration, and putting only what we view as our "best ideas" into Portfolios, will position us well to take advantage of any volatility.

InnovAsia – Investment Manager's Report

For the six-month reporting period ended 30 June 2025, the total return for the USD I Accumulating Class was 0.00%. Over the same period, the benchmark index, the MSCI All Country Asia Index (Total Return, Net of Tax, USD) (the Index), returned 13.53%. (Performance data quoted represent past performance and do not indicate future results. Total returns shown are net of all fees and expenses and include the reinvestment of income dividends and other distributions, if any.)

Macroeconomic, market and asset class conditions during the reporting period

- The Asia macroeconomic environment was characterised by moderate to robust growth in most economies, and a mix of monetary policy responses to local inflation dynamics and global uncertainties.
- Notably, the China equity market staged a rebound led by the emergence of DeepSeek, and positive momentum amid improved market sentiment as investors searched for diversification opportunities.
- Technology-oriented economies Taiwan and South Korea also continued to benefit from AI / data center demand.

What affected the Portfolio's performance during the reporting period

- Contributors to relative returns:
 - Stock selection in South Korea and Thailand
 - Healthcare exposure held up relatively better amid a volatile market environment
- Detractors from relative returns:
 - Underweight to China in the first quarter
 - Japan and Taiwan exposures pulled back in the first quarter on the back of tariff uncertainties and DeepSeek concerns
 - Stock selection in Semiconductors and Tech Hardware detracted in the first quarter, but rebounded in the second quarter on improved sentiment and resilient demand

Overview of investment activities during the reporting period

- Reduced Japan and Southeast Asia exposure as a source of funds for increased allocation to China
- Increased exposure to AI infrastructure companies across the supply chain
- Reduced exposure to companies more sensitive to an uncertain trade environment

Asian small-mid cap and technology equity remains attractive given reasonable valuations and the region's integral role in technology supply chains. Asia is a vibrant region with increasingly digital economies and is leading in early-stage innovative applications. We are constructive on the growth opportunity especially within advanced semiconductors, structural growth in AI, and digital content and lifestyle proliferation.

Japan Equity Engagement – Investment Manager's Report

For the six-month reporting period ended 30 June 2025, the total return for the JPY I Accumulating Class was 11.89%. Over the same period, the MSCI Japan Small Cap Index (Net) (Total Return, JPY) (the Index), returned 7.14%. (Performance data quoted represent past performance and do not indicate future results. Total returns shown are net of all fees and expenses and include the reinvestment of income dividends and other distributions, if any.)

Macroeconomic, market and asset class conditions during the reporting period

- During the reporting period, the Japanese equity market saw moderate gains, led by small caps, which outperformed global and US equity markets in JPY terms. Small caps were buoyed by lower import costs while being relatively shielded from the mounting risks of a global slowdown. While the announcement of new US tariffs in April introduced some volatility, particularly for Japanese exporters, other key developments included the Bank of Japan's gradual monetary tightening and a wave of share buybacks.

What affected the Portfolio's performance during the reporting period

- Contributors to relative returns:
 - The operator of household goods brand "MUJI" Ryohin Keikaku saw its stock gain on strong domestic sales and rising gross margins.
 - Regional lender Yamanashi Chuo Bank announced a new business plan to grow its fee income business in Western Tokyo and improve capital efficiency.
 - Aerospace parts maker Sinfonia Technology shares rose after reporting positive results and a new mid-term plan that foresees stable growth in its semiconductor and defense businesses.
- Detractors from relative returns:
 - Auto parts maker Musashi Seimitsu's stock corrected after a strong run in the fourth quarter of 2024 following its announcement to enter the AI data center supply chain.
 - Chinese herbal medicine maker Tsumura & Co saw its stock fall after announcing a new three-year business plan that fell short of consensus estimates due to costs associated from higher capital spending and general expenses.
 - Printer-maker Ricoh's stock declined after posting weaker-than-expected earnings from a protracted recovery in its core printing business.

Overview of investment activities during the reporting period

- The Portfolio was most overweight in Industrial and Communication services while being most underweight in Materials and Real Estate, which is a result of our bottom-up fundamentals-driven process to investment.
- The team conducted over 280 engagement meetings across capital management, corporate governance and sustainability themes, which we believe can have a material impact on the companies' corporate value over the mid- to long-term.

In recent months, renewed investor optimism and stabilising global conditions have helped the Japanese equity market to rebound somewhat, after retreating in the first quarter from last year's record highs. Despite the volatile market conditions, we continue to stay true to our investment process and our view that the current economic backdrop is boosting the case for global investors to relook at Japanese companies that generate the bulk of their revenues from the domestic market. These are businesses that we view are benefitting from lower import costs as a result of the stronger yen and still stand to benefit from corporate governance and capital management reforms.

Next Generation Connectivity – Investment Manager's Report

For the six-month reporting period ended 30 June 2025, the total return for the USD I Accumulating Class was 16.74%. Over the same period, the benchmark index, the MSCI All Country World Index (Total Return, Net of Tax, USD) (the Index), returned 10.05%. (Performance data quoted represent past performance and do not indicate future results. Total returns shown are net of all fees and expenses and include the reinvestment of income dividends and other distributions, if any.)

Macroeconomic, market and asset class conditions during the reporting period

- The global macroeconomic environment was characterised by moderate growth, divergent central bank policies, and heightened uncertainty driven by geopolitical tensions and trade frictions.
- Global equity markets experienced significant volatility, but ended the first half in positive territory, staging a rebound as trade tensions eased and momentum turned bullish.
- Stocks related to AI, especially AI infrastructure and software companies, continued to perform strongly.

What affected the Portfolio's performance during the reporting period

- Contributors to relative returns:
 - A strategic overweight to Semiconductors and Software, and stock selection in Tech Hardware
 - Stock selection in Asia, of which Taiwan and Japan exposures were notable
 - Exposure to AI infrastructure winners such as high-performance computing, data center networking, power and thermal cooling solutions providers
- Detractors from relative returns:
 - An underweight to Industrials led to slight detractor
 - European exposure relatively underperformed given an underweight to the region
 - Security-specific headwinds due to cyclical or a weaker demand outlook

Overview of investment activities during the reporting period

- Increased exposure to AI infrastructure opportunistically, especially during pullbacks when markets were oversold
- Increased Software exposure over the first half as outlook turned more optimistic and growth driven by AI
- Realised profits on outperformers opportunistically on rallies to lock-in returns amid a volatile market environment

In the face of continued macroeconomic uncertainty, we place strong emphasis on quality but are ready to capture tactical opportunities. The focus remains on areas with strong earnings tailwinds and visibility while maintaining valuation discipline. Next-generation connectivity continues to be the foundation of current and future technological innovations. We are positive on the beneficiaries of the acceleration in AI, the strategic semiconductor industry, and rising digital adoption.

Next Generation Mobility – Investment Manager's Report

For the six-month reporting period ended 30 June 2025, the total return for the USD I Accumulating Class was 13.81%. Over the same period, the MSCI All Country World Index (Total Return, Net of Tax, USD) (the Index) returned 10.05%. (Performance data quoted represent past performance and do not indicate future results. Total returns shown are net of all fees and expenses and include the reinvestment of income dividends and other distributions, if any.)

Macroeconomic, market and asset class conditions during the reporting period

- The automotive sector experienced mixed stock market performance. Investor sentiment was buoyed by continued global momentum in EV adoption and positive announcements around domestic battery manufacturing and expanded supply chains.
- Chinese automakers maintained their lead in EV deployment and supply chain integration, supporting strong equity performance in Asia, while North American and European automakers benefited from government incentives and domestic battery investments but faced challenges from slower consumer adoption and regulatory uncertainties. Conversely, some pure-play EV stocks faced headwinds due to slowing delivery growth and intensifying competition.
- The global battery market saw the strongest performance among Asian companies, particularly those in China and South Korea. Chinese battery manufacturers maintained their market leadership through scale, cost competitiveness, and tight integration with domestic and global EV makers, which helped drive robust gains. Korean firms also performed strongly, benefiting from advanced battery technology and major supply agreements with western and Chinese automakers.
- The autonomous driving segment saw incremental advancements, with most companies focusing on enhancing driver-assist features rather than full autonomy.

What affected the Portfolio's performance during the reporting period

- Contributors to relative returns:
 - Overweight to Industrials and underweight to Health Care versus the Index
 - Security selection within Information Technology, Industrials and Consumer Discretionary
- Detractors from relative returns:
 - Overweight to Consumer Discretionary and an underweight to Financials versus the Index

Overview of investment activities during the reporting period

- The largest positions added to the Portfolio were TechnipFMC, Carvana Co., and Woodward, Inc..
- The largest positions removed were Applied Materials, Inc., ON Semiconductor Corporation, and ASML Holding N.V., as we focused on balancing our semiconductor sub-sector Portfolio weight.

We see attractive, secular growth from technological development related to autonomous vehicles, electric vehicles and connected vehicles which we define as Next Generation Mobility. Although the deployments of these vehicles are currently in their infancy, inflection points have either arrived or are rapidly approaching. This evolution of the transportation sector offers vast long-term opportunities with the total market forecasted to exceed $1 trillion by 2026. Autonomous driving is a megatrend transforming the global transportation industry that offers attractive investment opportunities over the next 5-10 years. In Electrification, government legislation and stricter emission regulations will increase adoption rates for electric and hybrid vehicles. In Connectivity, the development and deployment of 5G networks are reshaping the future of connectivity for transportation. To capitalise on these trends, we maintain a balanced investment Portfolio which spans multiple sectors across regions that stand to benefit from the long-term disruption of the global transportation industry.

Next Generation Space Economy – Investment Manager's Report

For the six-month reporting period ended 30 June 2025, the total return for the USD I Accumulating Class was 35.11%. Over the same period, the benchmark index, the MSCI All Country World Index (ACWI) (Total Return, Net of Tax, USD) (the Index) returned 10.05%. (Performance data quoted represent past performance and do not indicate future results. Total returns shown are net of all fees and expenses and include the reinvestment of income dividends and other distributions, if any.)

Macroeconomic, market and asset class conditions during the reporting period

Global equities posted moderate gains, despite significant volatility fueled by US tariff policy, geopolitical tensions, and sharp currency movements. Early in the first quarter, heightened risk aversion emerged amid tariff threats—particularly those targeting China and the auto sector—which drove underperformance in emerging markets and Europe. Geopolitical risks (including US-China, Middle East, and Russia-Ukraine tensions) and foreign exchange swings—most notably a weaker US dollar in the second quarter—also contributed to market volatility. Throughout the period, many central banks around the world paused or eased monetary policy, providing support for risk assets. By the second quarter, a softening in US tariff rhetoric, renewed US-China trade talks, and improving macroeconomic data from China and Europe spurred sector rotation and led to outperformance in North Asia. Additionally, European Aerospace & Defense performed exceptionally well, bolstered by NATO's commitment to increase defense spending to 3.5–5% of GDP, Germany's fiscal front-loading, and a structural rearmament across Europe after decades of underinvestment.

What affected the Portfolio's performance during the reporting period

- Contributors to relative returns:
 - Our overweight to Industrials and strong stock selection aided relative returns with many pure-play space and non-US defense companies outperforming.
 - Our strong selection in Communication Services also aided relative returns as AST SpaceMobile outperformed the Index's offerings significantly.
- Detractors from relative returns:
 - Our underweight to Financials detracted as that sector outperformed the benchmark. Financials tend to be a smaller part of the investment universe as these businesses are typically not as involved in the Space Economy. This was partially offset by strong stock selection in Financials.

Overview of investment activities during the reporting period

- The Portfolio continues to take a barbell approach between what we believe to be growth and defensive positions. We have used dislocations as opportunities to initiate and scale both fundamentally and thematically relevant positions.
- Increased our global exposure as well as our exposure to pure-play investment opportunities addressing the expanding multi-sector opportunity set and helping diversify risk.

The outlook for the Space Economy remains strong, fueled by rapid innovation and rising investment from both public and private sectors. Around the globe, governments are intensifying their focus on space, recognising its strategic and economic potential and ramping up national initiatives and funding. Recent advances in satellite miniaturisation, reusable launch vehicles, and AI-powered earth observation have significantly lowered costs and expanded commercial applications—from global connectivity to climate monitoring. The convergence of space and defense is also accelerating, as NATO's historic commitment to increase defense spending will drive greater investment in space-based surveillance, secure communications, and missile defense systems.

Short Duration Emerging Market Debt – Investment Manager's Report

For the six-month reporting period ended 30 June 2025, the total return for the USD I Accumulating Class was 4.39%. Over the same period, the benchmark index, the ICE BofA 3-Month US Treasury Bill Index (Total Return, USD) (the Index) returned 2.07%. (Performance data quoted represent past performance and do not indicate future results. Total returns shown are net of all fees and expenses and include the reinvestment of income dividends and other distributions, if any.)

Macroeconomic, market and asset class conditions during the reporting period

- Trade policy in the US was the main market driver, while geopolitical developments in Ukraine and the Middle East weighed on sentiment.
- Emerging markets (EM) bonds with short durations benefited from a drop in short-end US Treasury yields, while on average EM spreads showed little change over the reporting period despite substantial volatility in April and May amid headlines related to US tariffs.

What affected the Portfolio's performance during the reporting period

- Contributors to relative returns:
 - Sovereign holdings in Ecuador, which rallied following the re-election of business-friendly President Noboa.
 - Quasi-sovereign holdings in Mexico and sovereign exposures in Panama and Ivory Coast.
 - The drop in the short-end US Treasury yields.
- Detractors from relative returns:
 - Sovereign holdings in Ukraine, amid fading expectations of a near-term ceasefire.
 - Sovereign holdings in Senegal

Overview of investment activities during the reporting period

- The Portfolio maintained a balanced allocation to EM corporates and sovereigns/quasi-sovereigns, and a duration around 2.6 years.
- We added exposure to Romania where we saw attractive spreads particularly in the context of the recent election of a centrist President which should contain policy risks. Elsewhere in the investment grade space we added to quasi-sovereign issuances in Saudi Arabia and Kazakhstan, while in the high yield space we mainly added to opportunities in Argentina, Colombia and Ecuador.
- We sold out of sovereign exposures in Senegal where we saw rising financing challenges, and in Serbia where tightened spreads offered limited compensation for ongoing political risks. Exposures in China, Qatar and South Korea also came down, largely driven by bond repayments.

Global markets are likely to remain volatile in the near term due to ongoing uncertainty over US trade negotiations. However, risks to EM assets are mitigated by stronger growth than in developed markets, a softer US dollar, improved credit fundamentals, and continued multilateral support. While spreads have tightened back after the sell-off in April, EM bonds continue to offer a decent spread pickup over developed market credit. Overall, we see short duration EM debt well positioned to generate attractive yield with relatively moderate risk in an environment of heightened macro and policy uncertainty.

Short Duration Euro Bond – Investment Manager's Report

For the six-month reporting period ended 30 June 2025, the total return for the EUR I Accumulating Class was 2.36%. Over the same period, the Bloomberg Euro Aggregate Bond 1-3 Year Index (Total Return, EUR) (the Index) returned 1.74%. (Performance data quoted represent past performance and do not indicate future results. Total returns shown are net of all fees and expenses and include the reinvestment of income dividends and other distributions, if any.)

Macroeconomic, market and asset class conditions during the reporting period

- Global fixed income and risk assets delivered strong returns in the second quarter, supported by resilient investor demand, attractive yields, and stable corporate fundamentals, with notable outperformance in spread sectors and equity indices (i.e. S&P 500 and Euro Stoxx 50) in May and June.
- Macro conditions remained resilient despite persistent but easing tariff and geopolitical uncertainty; government bond yields were volatile but trended lower by period end, while central banks (notably the European Central Bank) adopted cautious, data-dependent policy stances amid moderating inflation.
- Corporate fundamentals across investment grade and high yield remained stable, though idiosyncratic risks are rising; companies are focused on cost control, and bottom-up credit selection remains key as the outlook for spreads and macro policy stays fluid.

What affected the Portfolio's performance during the reporting period

- Contributors to relative returns:
 - Security selection was the primary driver to returns (164 basis points (bps))
 - Our positions across credit (both Financials and Industrials) have been key contributors
 - Sector allocation (around 20bps), primarily due to an overweight to corporate financials, in particular Real Estate
- Detractors from relative returns:
 - Curve positioning

Overview of investment activities during the reporting period

- We actively positioned duration over the period, moving shorter over the first quarter before adding back to sell-offs in the second quarter. We ended the period at around 1.95 years.
- We remained defensively positioned in credit, selectively adding to higher beta names whilst maintaining high quality exposure overall, with a continued focus on fundamentals.

The Portfolio has performed very favourably against both peers and the benchmark, ranking in the top quartile across 1, 3 and 5 years within the Morningstar peer group (EAA Fund EUR Diversified Bond – Short Term). Active management across our Core and Tactical buckets remains a key focus for the Portfolio, as we have continued to find opportunities across our universe to add value to performance from both a total return and risk management perspective. As rate cutting cycles continue across the US, Europe and UK, yields continue to remain at attractive levels, with the investable universe bolstered by higher coupons, which should bolster performance from a carry perspective even in the face of further rate market rallies.

Short Duration High Yield Engagement – Investment Manager's Report

For the six-month reporting period ended 30 June 2025, the total return for the USD I Accumulating Class was 4.14%. (Performance data quoted represent past performance and do not indicate future results. Total returns shown are net of all fees and expenses and include the reinvestment of income dividends and other distributions, if any.)

Macroeconomic, market and asset class conditions during the reporting period

- The high yield bond market finished the reporting period with solid returns driven by resilient economic growth and despite concerns of stickier inflation from higher tariffs. Credit spreads broadly tightened over the period, reflecting better than expected economic performance, stable fundamentals and steady demand for credit assets.
- High yield issuers' aggregate fundamentals of Earnings Before Interest, Tax, Depreciation and Amortisation growth, free cash flow, interest coverage and leverage remained in somewhat favourable ranges.
- While the default rate has risen off the lows in 2022, we anticipate default rates in 2025 to remain in a range that is around the long-term average. This outlook is based on our bottom-up assessment of issuers, and driven by the higher-quality ratings mix in high yield (~47% of issuers with credit ratings of BB), less aggressive new issuance, fewer near-term maturities, as well as an energy sector that is far healthier than in the past few cycles.

What affected the Portfolio's performance during the reporting period

- Contributors to absolute returns:
 - From a sector perspective, positioning in Support-Services, Healthcare and Diversified Financial Services.
 - From a ratings perspective, positioning in B and BB rated issuers.
- Detractors from absolute returns:
 - There were no detractors from a sector perspective; however, positioning in Aerospace/Defense, Airlines and Automotive and Auto Parts added the least.
 - From a ratings perspective, there were no detractors; however, positioning in BBB & above and CCC & below rated issuers added the least.

Overview of investment activities during the reporting period

- In our high yield strategies, we rotated selectively into BB's where prices remained attractive to underlying fundamentals and default expectations were low.
- While we reduced exposure to CCC & below, positioning in CCC's is where we had a differentiated view of the individual credits based on our proprietary ratings and analyst views on the individual credits. We also focused on swapping within industries and risk cohorts of the market to maximise resilience to the impact from tariffs. We also reduced the Portfolio's exposure to B rated issuers.
- Our plan was to center the Portfolio primarily around BB and higher-quality B credit risk (based on our internal credit ratings) and overweight sectors that we viewed as resilient in the current environment.

We believe high yield valuations provide more than adequate compensation for the around average default outlook, should continue to provide durable income and are attractive compared to other fixed income alternatives. While the incoming macroeconomic data, future policy uncertainty of Trump administration, geopolitical concerns and overall credit cycle dynamics can move the high yield market day-to-day, our analysts continue to be focused on the specific fundamentals of individual issuers, with analysts assessing the base and downside cases. We believe our bottom-up, fundamental credit research that focuses on security selection, avoiding credit deterioration, and putting only what we view as our "best ideas" into Portfolios, will position us well to take advantage of any volatility.

Strategic Income – Investment Manager's Report

For the six-month reporting period ended 30 June 2025, the total return for the USD I Accumulating Class was 5.12%. Over the same period, the benchmark index, the Bloomberg US Aggregate Bond Index (Total Return, USD), returned 4.02%. (Performance data quoted represent past performance and do not indicate future results. Total returns shown are net of all fees and expenses and include the reinvestment of income dividends and other distributions, if any.)

Macroeconomic, market and asset class conditions during the reporting period

- The first half of 2025 delivered positive returns across fixed income markets, primarily driven by coupon income amid generally stable economic data. Spread sectors ended the period with spreads only slightly changed from the start of the year, despite a brief volatility spike after the 2 April 2025 US tariff announcement. The subsequent delay in implementation enabled the US to pursue specific trade deals, after which markets resumed a risk-on stance.
- In the first half of 2025, the Federal Reserve (Fed) held its policy rate steady amid uncertainty from new tariffs and their potential inflation effects. Although markets initially delayed rate cut expectations into 2026, subdued inflation data, particularly for tradeable goods, persisted. By July 2025, softer inflation prints and limited tariff pass-through led Fed officials and markets to bring forward expectations for rate cuts.
- In the US, economic growth and labour market conditions are moderating but remain supportive. In contrast, the macroeconomic outlook outside the US is less favourable. The Fed and Bank of England have maintained restrictive monetary policies, though both are anticipated to ease gradually later this year. The European Central Bank has continued to lower its policy rate, reflecting more substantial progress toward its inflation target.

What affected the Portfolio's performance during the reporting period

- Contributors to relative returns:
 - High yield, duration positioning and investment grade (IG) were the top contributors.
 - Collateralised Loan Obligations, senior floating rate loans and emerging markets debt.
- Detractors from relative returns:
 - Overweight exposure in agency mortgage-backed securities (MBS), although this was more than offset by positive security selection.
 - Underweight to US Treasuries detracted slightly.

Overview of investment activities during the reporting period

- We reduced exposure to agency MBS, securitised credit and bank loans and increased exposure to US IG credit (including hybrids), high yield, nominal US Treasuries and US Treasury Inflation-Protected Securities.
- We increased the Portfolio's duration by 0.89 years.

We maintain a constructive outlook on fixed income, favouring shorter durations and active credit selection amid supportive technicals and stable corporate fundamentals. However, unpredictable policy changes could keep the remainder of the year eventful, requiring vigilance. Real economic conditions are mixed across developed countries, but the outlook has improved since mid-April, and investor demand for fixed income remains resilient. This backdrop continues to emphasise the importance of quality, fundamentals-driven relative valuation, and seizing yield and price opportunities.

Sustainable Asia High Yield – Investment Manager's Report

For the six-month reporting period ended 30 June 2025, the total return for the USD I Accumulating Class was 3.30%. Over the same period, the benchmark index, the JP Morgan ESG Asia Credit (JESG JACI) High Yield Index (Total Return, USD) (the Index), returned 3.77%. (Performance data quoted represent past performance and do not indicate future results. Total returns shown are net of all fees and expenses and include the reinvestment of income dividends and other distributions, if any.)

Macroeconomic, market and asset class conditions during the reporting period

- In the first half of 2025, Asia high yield bonds continued to deliver positive returns despite ongoing trade tariff uncertainties and geopolitical tensions in the Middle East, with contributions from spread tightening and lower US Treasury yield.
- Across the region, policymakers implemented proactive measures to support growth amid external macroeconomic pressures. Overall, the credit fundamentals of Asian corporate issuers remain resilient with default risks largely contained within the Chinese restructured property sector.

What affected the Portfolio's performance during the reporting period

- Contributors to relative returns:
 - Our overweight exposure to Financial in a number of countries such as Hong Kong, India and Thailand were strong contributors to performance.
 - Our underweight exposure to Philippines also contributed to returns as the very tight valuations lagged the overall spread compression.
 - Our overweight exposure to Macau added to relative returns as gaming names rallied on the back of robust revenue bookings and continued deleveraging trend.
- Detractors from relative returns:
 - Our overweight position in Hong Kong's real estate sector detracted from performance, as New World Development's decision to defer June coupon payments on four of its perpetual bonds disappointed the market.
 - Security selection within India's renewables sector also weighed on performance.

Overview of investment activities during the reporting period

- Over the reporting period, the Portfolio incrementally increased its exposure to Greater China, particularly in fundamentally stronger property developers and Hong Kong financial tiered capital. The market rally also provided an opportune moment to take profits on names that had tight valuations. We trimmed some of our off-benchmark holdings in investment grade bonds as well as short-dated financial tiered capital and Indonesia utilities.

In our view, Asian high yield credit remains a compelling investment opportunity underpinned by improving fundamental across the market. Additionally, the asset class benefits from the tailwind of negative net issuance for the fourth consecutive year and offers attractive all-in yields. In the near term, markets may remain sensitive to geopolitical developments surrounding tariffs, which may impact growth in the region. However, we think Asian central banks will have room for additional policy rate cuts. Moreover, the robust fundamentals of Asian issuers are likely to provide resilience in the event of a deterioration in macroeconomic conditions.

Sustainable Emerging Market Debt - Hard Currency – Investment Manager's Report

For the six-month reporting period ended 30 June 2025, the total return for the USD I Accumulating Class was 4.88%. Over the same period, the benchmark index, the JP Morgan ESG EMBI Global Diversified (Total Return, USD) (the Index), returned 5.37%. (Performance data quoted represent past performance and do not indicate future results. Total returns shown are net of all fees and expenses and include the reinvestment of income dividends and other distributions, if any.)

Macroeconomic, market and asset class conditions during the reporting period

- Trade policy in the US was the main market driver while there was also focus on the fiscal trajectory. Geopolitical developments in Ukraine and the Middle East weighed on sentiment.
- The yield on the US 10-year Treasury ended the period at 4.23%, down from 4.58% at the end of 2024, with some volatility in between as the market weighed the impact of tariffs on growth and inflation.
- Emerging markets (EM) ESG benchmark spreads rose slightly, moving to 238 basis point (bps) from 235bps, after reaching a peak of 294bps following the announcement of significant tariffs by the US in early April. Within the broad market index, Lebanon was the best performer with 46.51% return as its parliament was able to break a two-year political deadlock, confirming a new president and parliament, raising hopes over a debt resolution. The worst performer was Senegal at -12.23% as the government announced a significant upward revision to debt and deficit levels.

What affected the Portfolio's performance during the reporting period

- Contributors to relative returns:
 - Security selection overall, mainly due to euro-denominated exposures in Ivory Coast, Peru, and Serbia.
 - Overweight to Ghana and absence from Senegal and Qatar.
- Detractors from relative returns:
 - Country allocation overall, mainly due to absence from Ecuador, and underweight to Panama, due to the issuers not meeting fund's sustainable framework.
 - Curve positioning in Ukraine.

Overview of investment activities during the reporting period

- The Portfolio maintained a high yield bias over investment grade (IG) credits. Within that, we reduced exposure to Ukraine, where the prolonged conflict poses further risks, and to Colombia as it faces increasing challenges. We also trimmed positions in El Salvador and Serbia, where we see limited further upside in valuations.
- Allocation to EUR-denominated bonds and corporate bonds was 27.2% and 10.3% respectively at the end of the reporting period.

Global markets are likely to remain volatile in the near term due to ongoing uncertainty over US trade negotiations and fiscal concerns. However, risks to EM assets are mitigated by stronger growth relative to developed markets, a softer US dollar, improved credit fundamentals, and continued multilateral support. Valuations remain expensive for IG and BB-rated bonds, while B-rated and lower segments offer value. We see opportunities for spread compression among improving issuers, and off-benchmark bonds notably in the BB-rated segment.

Tactical Macro – Investment Manager's Report

For the six-month reporting period ended 30 June 2025, the total return for the USD I Accumulating Class was 5.82%. Over the same period, the ICE BofA US Dollar 3-Month Deposit Offered Rate Constant Maturity Index (Total Return, USD) (the Index) returned 2.16%. (Performance data quoted represent past performance and do not indicate future results. Total returns shown are net of all fees and expenses and include the reinvestment of income dividends and other distributions, if any.)

Macroeconomic, market and asset class conditions during the reporting period

- Global equities and bonds faced renewed volatility in the first half of 2025 as persistent inflation, moderating growth, and geopolitical uncertainty weighed on sentiment. After a weak start, risk assets rebounded in the second quarter, driven by easing trade tensions and selective strength in non-US markets.
- Major central banks pursued divergent strategies. The Federal Reserve held rates steady through mid-year, balancing concerns over slowing growth, evolving labour market dynamics, and ongoing global uncertainties, while the European Central Bank and Bank of England initiated cautious rate cuts in response to clearer disinflation and softer economic conditions. Diverging policy paths and a weaker US dollar shaped the market environment.
- Earnings remained resilient in technology and defense, supported by ongoing AI and security investment, while cyclical sectors lagged. Emerging market performance was mixed, reflecting policy developments and responses along with inflation trends.

What affected the Portfolio's performance during the reporting period

- Contributors to absolute returns:
 - The largest contributors were different timing related to both long and short exposures in the US 10-year Treasuries.
- Detractors from absolute returns:
 - The largest detractors were select S&P 500 Put Options and a short Canadian 10-year Treasury position.

Overview of investment activities during the reporting period

- In the first quarter, the Portfolio navigated growing policy uncertainty and rotating regional performance, profiting from short dollar positions and exposures to the US 10-year Treasury, but faced challenges with S&P Put Options and the short Canadian 10-year position.
- The second quarter saw heightened volatility amid continued global and policy uncertainty, yet the Portfolio took profits from long Korean equity and long Euro positions, while long Russell 2000 Call Options and US 2-year exposures detracted.

As we progress through 2025, the Portfolio remains highly tactical amid rapid and unpredictable shifts in global trade and fiscal policy, as pronounced moves in asset prices underscore the heightened sensitivity of markets to both macroeconomic and geopolitical developments. Extraordinary volatility in global currencies, such as the Taiwanese dollar, and in long-dated government bond yields such as in Japan, highlight how regional shocks can trigger outsized global repercussions. Despite stretches of resilience and sharp rebounds in risk assets, uncertainty persists around inflation trajectories, fiscal sustainability, and the response of central banks—creating a complex investment landscape. The interplay between nominal growth, real GDP trends, and the risk of hotter inflation prints in the coming months demands a cautious and flexible approach. Our focus remains on identifying mispricing's and structural shifts, particularly as markets increasingly front-run fiscal policy themes. We will continue to dynamically adjust exposures, prioritising agility and risk management, given the rapid evolution and less predictable nature of the current market environment.

Uncorrelated Strategies – Investment Manager's Report

For the six-month reporting period ended 30 June 2025, the total return for the USD I Accumulating Class was -6.36%. Over the same period, the benchmark index, the ICE BofA US Dollar 3-Month Deposit Offered Rate Constant Maturity Index (Total Return, USD) (the Index) returned 2.16%. (Performance data quoted represent past performance and do not indicate future results. Total returns shown are net of all fees and expenses and include the reinvestment of income dividends and other distributions, if any.)

Macroeconomic, market and asset class conditions during the reporting period

- Despite the volatility that surrounded tariff announcements and Middle Eastern conflicts, the first half of the year was a broadly risk-on period. Equity indices in Europe and the US again performed strongly, while bond markets rallied on softer inflation data, reducing concerns about higher rates.
- The MSCI World (Local) Index finished the period up 6.9%, while the Bloomberg Global Aggregate Index finished up 7.3%. The US dollar (as proxied by the DXY Index) has been weaker in the year to date, down -9.81%, driven by tariff rhetoric, the release of the German debt break and a possible reduction in the significant net dollar inflows required to keep the dollar steady.
- While there was a sharp episode of volatility in April around Liberation Day, the equity rally that followed this saw volatility fall by quarter-end, with the VIX Index finishing the quarter at 16.7.

What affected the Portfolio's performance during the reporting period

- Contributors to absolute returns:
 - Volatility Relative Value (+1.83%), Statistical Arbitrage (+0.26%)
- Detractors from absolute returns:
 - Short Term Trading (-3.59%), Global Macro (-3.49%), Trend Following (-1.11%) Equity Market Neutral (-0.30%), Insurance-Linked Securities (-0.09%)

Overview of investment activities during the reporting period

- The systematic macro allocation was reduced in weight in the second quarter, and at the same time, the discretionary macro was upweighted.
- Convertible bond arbitrage was reduced within the volatility book and was replaced with newer convex credit strategies.

After a strong finish to 2024, the Portfolio struggled over the first half of this year, especially in the first quarter, with a change in direction from last year's thematic and a technically challenging trading environment. Volatility strategies have been the main bright spot, showing the ability to profit from short periods of disruption such as we saw in early April, although even these gains have been limited by the very quick rebounds we have seen from any pullbacks. Had a further decline in April been witnessed or even a stalled recovery, performance would likely have been substantially better. However, we must acknowledge that the year has been one characterised by reversals and rebounds, which has been tricky for the momentum part of the Portfolio in particular, which is designed to capture some of the more persistent directional breakouts. The returns of Trend Following and Short-Term Trading are notoriously difficult to forecast but are often most positive after periods of underwhelming performance, as has been seen of late. As such, while minor changes have been made to the Portfolio to adapt to the current environment, conviction has been retained in these two strategies and risk has not been reduced in either area.

US Equity – Investment Manager's Report

For the six-month reporting period ended 30 June 2025, the total return for the USD I Accumulating Class was 7.09%. Over the same period, the benchmark index, the S&P 500 Index (Total Return, Net of Tax, USD) (the Index) returned 5.99%. (Performance data quoted represent past performance and do not indicate future results. Total returns shown are net of all fees and expenses and include the reinvestment of income dividends and other distributions, if any.)

Macroeconomic, market and asset class conditions during the reporting period

- After declining over the first four months of the year the market rallied sharply in May and June and generated a solid gain during the six-month reporting period. The market's rebound was partially due to continued trade negotiations between the US numerous trading partners, solid corporate earnings, and hopes that the Federal Reserve (Fed) may move sooner to lower interest rates. During the first quarter of 2025, the US economy contracted—the first such occurrence since 2022. In contrast, the labour market remained resilient, while inflation remained higher than the Fed's 2% target.

What affected the Portfolio's performance during the reporting period

- Contributors to relative returns:
 - Stock selection, overall, contributed to relative performance, driven by holdings in the Communication Services and Industrials sectors.
 - Sector allocation, overall, modestly contributed to performance. In particular an overweight to Communication Services and an underweight to Health Care were the most additive.
 - Individual stocks that contributed to relative performance included overweight positions in Netflix, Inc. and Meta Platforms, Inc. Class A, and not owning shares of Tesla, Inc.
- Detractors from relative returns:
 - Stock selection in the Financials and Information Technology sectors detracted the most.
 - In terms of sector allocation, an overweight in Consumer Discretionary and an underweight in Financials were the largest detractors.
 - Individual stocks that were negative for the Portfolio's relative performance included overweight positions in Salesforce, Inc., Alphabet, Inc. Class A, and Trade Desk, Inc. Class A.

Overview of investment activities during the reporting period

- We made a number of adjustments on the margin throughout the reporting period. At the end of the reporting period our largest overweight allocations, relative to the Index, were IT and Communication Services, while the largest underweights were Health Care and Energy.

As we move through 2025, while the consumer and economy have been more resilient than expected, recent trends are pointing to increased uncertainty. A confluence of political and geopolitical volatility is increasingly weighing on consumer and corporate sentiment, delaying decision making and potentially leading to slowing economic growth. As market dynamics change, we believe this can cause company market values to dislocate from their long-term potential values, creating a volatile environment with potential opportunities both long and short.

US Equity Premium – Investment Manager's Report

For the six-month reporting period ended 30 June 2025, the total return for the USD I Accumulating Class was 2.01%. Over the same period, the blended benchmark comprised of 50% Cboe S&P One-Week PutWrite Index and 50% Cboe S&P 500 PutWrite Index (collectively, the Index) returned 0.60%. (Performance data quoted represent past performance and do not indicate future results. Total returns shown are net of all fees and expenses and include the reinvestment of income dividends and other distributions, if any.)

Macroeconomic, market and asset class conditions during the reporting period

- If the first quarter of 2025 was about recalibration, the second quarter delivered a full-throated rebound—underscoring that unpredictability is the market's only constant. By June's close, the S&P 500 Index surged to a new all-time high, posting a 6.20% year-to-date return after an earlier -19% drawdown.
- Fixed income investors were reminded that market leadership is never static. The Bloomberg US Aggregate Bond Index rose 4.02% year-to-date as US Treasury yields climbed on economic resilience and a hawkish Federal Reserve (Fed), while high yield bonds outperformed, with the Bloomberg US Corp. High Yield Bond Index gaining 4.57% amid strong corporate fundamentals.
- Early April underscored market fragility as new tariffs sent the Cboe S&P 500 Volatility Index (VIX) above 50, triggering panic and a brief disruption, followed by a swift reversal and a 9% single-day S&P 500 rally. Despite persistent policy and geopolitical uncertainty, investors pressed ahead, with the VIX averaging 23.6 year-to-date. April's volatility shock drove implied volatility premiums sharply negative, but by June, premiums had rebounded to positive levels.

What affected the Portfolio's performance during the reporting period

- Contributors to relative returns:
 - Year-to-date performance was driven by a 2.05% return from the collateral Portfolio and a more modest 36 basis points from the options sleeve.
- Detractors from relative returns:
 - There were no detractors from relative returns during the reporting period.

Overview of investment activities during the reporting period

- The Portfolio's average option notional exposure over the period remained consistent with strategic target of 100% S&P 500 Index.

We believe if there is one lesson from the first half of this year, it's that uncertainty remains a constant in the market. The Trump administration's policy pivots, persistent geopolitical flashpoints, and renewed debate over the path of interest rates have created a landscape where risk can emerge, and recede, without warning.

In this environment, we believe the value of monetising volatility has never been clearer. In our view, systematic option strategies are uniquely equipped to seek to turn today's premium-rich landscape into a source of risk-efficient return, dampening the impact of market shocks and providing a steady hand through turbulence. Our approach adapts in real time, reflecting prevailing conditions and ensuring we are compensated for the risks we underwrite.

Periods of policy and macroeconomic uncertainty may test investor resolve, but they may also create fertile ground for disciplined premium collection. With volatility stabilising in the high teens to low 20s, we see an ongoing opportunity to generate attractive returns, whether markets move sideways, grind higher, or face fresh bouts of volatility. We remain steadfast in our belief that thoughtful risk management and systematic volatility harvesting are essential components of modern portfolio construction.

US Large Cap Value – Investment Manager's Report

Over the same period, the benchmark index, the Russell 1000 Value Index (Total Return, Net of Tax, USD) (the Index) returned 5.68%. (Performance data quoted represent past performance and do not indicate future results. Total returns shown are net of all fees and expenses and include the reinvestment of income dividends and other distributions, if any.)

Macroeconomic, market and asset class conditions during the reporting period

- After declining over the first four months of the year the market rallied sharply in May and June, and generated a solid gain during the reporting period. The market's rebound was partially due to continued trade negotiations between the numerous US trading partners, and solid corporate earnings.

What affected the Portfolio's performance during the reporting period

- Contributors to relative returns:
 - Stock selection, overall, contributed to relative performance, driven by holdings in the Materials and Consumer Staples sectors.
 - Individual stocks that contributed the most included a position in Wheaton Precious Metals Corp., an overweight in Philip Morris International, Inc., and a position in Agnico Eagle Mines Limited.
 - From a sector positioning perspective, underweights to Consumer Discretionary and Real Estate were the largest contributors to relative performance.
- Detractors from relative returns:
 - Sector allocation, overall, detracted from relative performance. Overweights to Health Care and Energy were the largest detractors.
 - In terms of stock selection, holdings in the Information Technology and Industrials sectors were the largest headwinds for returns.
 - Individual stocks that detracted the most included a position in Las Vegas Sands Corp., an overweight position in Bristol-Myers Squibb Company and not owning shares of GE Aerospace.

Overview of investment activities during the reporting period

- At the end of the period the Portfolio's largest overweights versus the Index were Materials and Energy; its largest underweights were Communication Services and Information Technology.

As we enter the second half of 2025, US economic prospects remain mixed. While recent market gains reflect optimism around easing trade tensions and fiscal stimulus, the underlying data suggest a more cautious stance may be warranted. Consumer spending has softened, labor market momentum is fading, and inflation remains above the Federal Reserve's 2% long-term target. These crosscurrents are likely to keep monetary policy on hold in the near term. Fiscal policy will also play a critical role in shaping the outlook. The passage of the revised "One Big Beautiful Bill" has provided a short-term boost to sentiment, but questions remain about its long-term implications for debt sustainability and interest rates. Meanwhile, geopolitical risks and uncertainty around global trade continue to pose downside risks to growth and market stability. In this environment, we anticipate volatility to remain elevated. Investors are likely to favor quality and defensiveness, with a continued tilt toward value-oriented sectors that offer earnings resilience and attractive valuations.

US Long Short Equity – Investment Manager's Report

For the six-month reporting period ended 30 June 2025, the total return for the USD I Accumulating Class was 3.93%. Over the same period, the two benchmark indices, the S&P 500 Index (Total Return, Net of Tax, USD) and the HFRX Equity Hedge Index (Total Return, USD) returned 5.99% and 4.32%, respectively. (Performance data quoted represent past performance and do not indicate future results. Total returns shown are net of all fees and expenses and include the reinvestment of income dividends and other distributions, if any.)

Macroeconomic, market and asset class conditions during the reporting period

- After declining over the first four months of the year and nearing a bear market in April (a decline of 20% or more from a recent high) the market rallied sharply in May and June and generated a solid gain over the six-month reporting period. The market's rebound was partially due to continued trade negotiations between the US numerous trading partners, solid corporate earnings, and hopes that the Federal Reserve (Fed) may move sooner to lower interest rates. During the first quarter of 2025, the US economy contracted—the first such occurrence since 2022. In contrast, the labour market remained resilient, while inflation remained higher than the Fed's 2% target.

What affected the Portfolio's performance during the reporting period

- Contributors to relative returns:
 - Equity long positions, overall; in particular, longs in the Health Care and Industrials
 - Equity short positions in the Financials and Communication Services sectors
- Detractors from relative returns:
 - Equity long positions in the Information Technology and Real Estate sectors
 - Equity short positions in the Information Technology sector

Overview of investment activities during the reporting period

- During the period, net Portfolio exposure decreased incrementally to approximately 40-45% net long, while gross notional exposure increased to the approximately 145-150% area.
- Total Fundamental Short exposure decreased during the period, led by a decline in shorts in the Consumer Staples, Consumer Discretionary and Financials sectors.
- Market Short exposure related to hedging activity increased during the period.

As we move through 2025, while the consumer and economy have been more resilient than expected, recent trends are pointing to increased uncertainty. A confluence of political and geopolitical volatility is increasingly weighing on consumer and corporate sentiment, delaying decision making and potentially leading to slowing economic growth. As market dynamics change, we believe this can cause company market values to dislocate from their long-term potential values, creating a volatile environment with potential opportunities both long and short.

US Multi Cap Opportunities – Investment Manager's Report

For the six-month reporting period ended 30 June 2025, the total return for the USD1 I Accumulating Class was 5.38%. Over the same period, the S&P 500 Index (Total Return, Net of Tax, USD) (the Index) returned 5.99%. (Performance data quoted represent past performance and do not indicate future results. Total returns shown are net of all fees and expenses and include the reinvestment of income dividends and other distributions, if any.)

Macroeconomic, market and asset class conditions during the reporting period

- Progress on global trade policy, better-than-expected corporate earnings growth, advancing tax legislation, normalising inflation, and the prospect of easing monetary policy, drove an improvement in investor sentiment and contributed to positive equity market returns in the first half of 2025.
- US equities experienced elevated volatility in the first quarter and into early April, largely driven by uncertainty related to tariff negotiations, geopolitical developments, and global growth concerns.
- Equity markets rebounded following positive developments in global trade policy throughout the second quarter. This included the announcement of a 90-day pause for reciprocal tariffs, a framework of a trade agreement between the US and the UK and encouraging negotiations between the US and China.
- Market breadth improved in the first half of 2025 compared to 2023 and 2024. There is potential for this trend to continue. Wider market breadth may result in a more conducive environment for stock-specific opportunities across market capitalisations and investment styles.

What affected the Portfolio's performance during the reporting period

- The Portfolio achieved a positive absolute return in 8 of 10 sectors (no exposure to Real Estate).
- Contributors to relative returns:
 - The Portfolio added value in 7 of 11 sectors, demonstrating the benefits of exposure to a diversified mix of sectors and industries.
 - Positive stock selection within the Consumer Discretionary, Consumer Staples, Financials, and Health Care sectors benefited relative performance.
 - Sector positioning benefited relative performance, driven by overweight positions to the Financials, Industrials, and Materials sectors, and underweights to the Energy and Health Care sectors
- Detractors from relative returns:
 - Stock selection within the Communication Services and Materials sectors detracted.
 - An underweight to the Information Technology sector detracted.

Overview of investment activities during the reporting period

- The Portfolio was fully invested with approximately 1.0% transactional cash.
- The Portfolio finished the period with an overweight in Financials, Industrials, and Materials, underweights in Health Care and Information Technology and had no exposure to Real Estate.

The core of our investment process is an unwavering focus on a company's generation of free cash flow and its use by management. We believe free cash flow is a cleaner measure of value creation than income statement earnings, which may be obfuscated by various accounting methods. Our analysis considers the stability and sources of free cash flow generation as well as its potential uses. This investment focus enables us to look across sectors, market capitalisations, and risk profiles to find opportunities.

Several US policy initiatives offer additional upside for economic growth, including: deregulation, reshoring of manufacturing, and increased US energy production. Tax legislation will provide increased certainty for business planning and capital allocation.

The ongoing dialogue between the US and key global trade partners is constructive for equity markets. Continuing negotiations demonstrate a collaborative willingness to achieve trade agreements that are supportive of ongoing growth. As additional clarity emerges, we see the potential for further improvement in equity market sentiment.

As we evaluate both potential new positions and current Portfolio holdings, we will continue to do so with a long-term investment perspective in mind. As always, our focus is to grow our clients' assets through the disciplined application of our investment philosophy and process.

US Real Estate Securities – Investment Manager's Report

For the six-month reporting period ended 30 June 2025, the total return for the USD I Accumulating Class was -0.46%. Over the same period, the benchmark index, the FTSE Nareit All Equity REITs Index (Total Return, Net of Tax, USD) (the Index) returned 1.18%. (Performance data quoted represent past performance and do not indicate future results. Total returns shown are net of all fees and expenses and include the reinvestment of income dividends and other distributions, if any.)

Macroeconomic, market and asset class conditions during the reporting period

- The S&P 500 underperformed in the first quarter of 2025 as large-cap technology and consumer discretionary stocks fell sharply while defensive sectors provided some support. April's announcement of new tariffs added to volatility and pressured both stocks and bonds.
- Sentiment improved shortly after with the delay in tariffs, and then more so in May, driven by the passage of a major fiscal bill, better-than-expected corporate earnings, and renewed optimism for a potential Federal Reserve (Fed) rate cut later in the year.
- The S&P 500 Index returned 5.99% during the reporting period. In contrast, the Index returned 1.18%. Real estate securities were negatively impacted by higher-for-longer interest rates, which impacted financing costs.

What affected the Portfolio's performance during the reporting period

- Contributors to relative returns:
 - Security selection within Health Care
 - Security selection within Lodging/Resorts
 - Overweight to Telecommunications REITs and underweight to Data Centers
- Detractors from relative returns:
 - Security selection within Free Standing
 - Security selection within Gaming REITs
 - Underweight to Lodging/Resorts and overweight to Office

Overview of investment activities during the reporting period

- While the Portfolio's sector positioning is mainly driven by bottom-up stock selection, at the end of the reporting period its largest overweight allocations versus the Index were to Manufactured Homes and Telecommunication REITs. In contrast, the Portfolio's largest sector underweights relative to the Index were in the Industrial and Lodging/Resorts sectors.

The 10-year Treasury yield declined 34 basis points to 4.24% for the reporting period, reflecting improved inflation readings and evolving rate expectations. Over the period, REITs lagged as optimism around the "One Big Beautiful Bill" grew and tariff concerns moderated. We anticipate continued volatility driven by the macroeconomic environment, tariffs, rate policy and geopolitical risks. While lower rates would be a clear positive for REITs, the lack of interest rate stability currently remains a greater headwind for deal activity. However, we see opportunity for well-capitalised REITs as supply pressures ease across key sectors—including sunbelt apartments, storage, and retail—and new construction remains limited. We remain focused on REITs with low leverage, diverse demand drivers, solid fundamentals, and strong earnings visibility. Experienced REITs with robust balance sheets and proven execution should be able to strengthen their market leadership positions.

US Small Cap – Investment Manager's Report

For the six-month reporting period ended 30 June 2025, the total return for the USD I Accumulating Class was down -4.54%. Over the same period, the benchmark index, the Russell 2000 Index (Total Return, Net of Tax, USD) (the Index) returned -1.98%. (Performance data quoted represent past performance and do not indicate future results. Total returns shown are net of all fees and expenses and include the reinvestment of income dividends and other distributions, if any.)

Macroeconomic, market and asset class conditions during the reporting period

- Over the past six months the small cap market has been quite volatile with investors reacting strongly to a series of policy announcements, macroeconomic data points, and geopolitical events.
- In the first quarter, the market declined, as tariff announcements raised concerns about the potential for higher inflation and slower economic growth. During this "risk off" period, higher quality (earnings and the most profitable companies), with larger market caps, and lower levels of volatility, outperformed. The Portfolio outperformed this market environment.
- In the second quarter, investors celebrated the reduction in trade uncertainty and solid macroeconomic data. During this "risk on" period, the market rebounded sharply and lower quality, speculative, heavily shorted, and volatile companies outperformed. This represented a significant headwind for our high-quality focused Portfolio and the Portfolio materially underperformed.

What affected the Portfolio's performance during the reporting period

- Contributors to relative returns:
 - Sector allocation was positive during the period.
 - The lack of speculative and lower-quality biotechnology names in our Portfolio added significant value, as the Trump administration implemented notable policy changes creating uncertainty for both healthcare companies and investors.
 - The Portfolio's overweight to Industrials added to performance.
- Detractors from relative returns:
 - Stock selection was negative in seven of the eleven sectors in which we invest and weakest in the Information Technology, Financials and Healthcare sectors.
 - Within Technology, thematically driven and money-losing companies outperformed, and a handful of companies in the Portfolio declined for company-specific reasons.
 - Within Financials, our insurance names were a drag on relative results.
 - In Healthcare, our Providers & Services names underperformed.

Overview of investment activities during the reporting period

- We added to our regional bank exposure due to their improving risk / reward profile driven by deregulation, expanding margins, inflecting loan and deposit growth, robust capital levels, and stable credit quality.
- We also continued to build our utilities exposure driven by the prospects of durable, yet accelerating earnings growth driven by data center growth, reindustrialisation, and aging infrastructure. Like regional banks, our utilities are trading below long-term average valuations, despite improving growth outlooks.

We believe the passing of the Republican led tax bill has largely positive implications for the small-cap asset class driven by lower tax rates, growth-oriented tax deductions and select credits for industries that are deemed strategic. We believe that the current administration is generally business friendly but willing to introduce short-term pain for what it sees as long-term objectives. We remain confident that our high-quality Portfolio is well-positioned to deliver above-average, risk-adjusted returns over the long-term.

US Small Cap Intrinsic Value – Investment Manager's Report

For the six-month reporting period ended 30 June 2025, the total return for the USD I Accumulating Class was -2.03%. Over the same period, the benchmark index, the Russell 2000 Value Index (Total Return, Net of Tax, USD) (the Index) returned -3.46%. (Performance data quoted represent past performance and do not indicate future results. Total returns shown are net of all fees and expenses and include the reinvestment of income dividends and other distributions, if any.)

Macroeconomic, market and asset class conditions during the reporting period

- We entered 2025 expecting the year to be volatile and it's playing out as we suspected. To start, six weeks of enthusiasm for deregulation and tax cuts quickly morphed into tariff and recession anxiety. In the second quarter we also experienced a tariff mini crash, a war in the Middle East and the United States bombing of three Iranian nuclear facilities.
- Inflation appears to be subsiding, short-term interest rates have peaked and, believe it or not, there are some benefits from "reasonable" tariffs in the form of revenues for the Treasury and domestic manufacturing investment by foreign companies. Importantly, we sit on the cusp of an AI productivity surge.
- On the flip side, economic growth here and abroad is anemic. Employment trends, particularly among those under 25 years old, are not good. And post COVID-19, there isn't a lot of pent-up demand that lower interest rates will unleash. More concerning though, is that government deficits remain unsustainably high.
- Excessive financial leverage and cyclical sensitivity will likely continue to hinder performance until economic growth accelerates. This matters because small caps have greater sensitivity to economic growth (or contraction) than their large cap peers.

What affected the Portfolio's performance during the reporting period

- Contributors to total returns:
 - A rebound in the Information Technology and Industrials sectors along with continued strength in Utilities helped both absolute and relative returns.
 - Noteworthy individual contributors to the Portfolio's absolute performance came from several AI beneficiaries (i.e., Vistra) and continued solid execution from traditional value names (i.e., AerCap and Kyndryl).
- Detractors from total returns:
 - Weakness in the Communication Services and Health Care sectors detracted from both absolute and relative returns. The Portfolio's underweight in Financials continued to detract from relative performance.
 - Individual detractors from absolute performance included Criteo, one of the Portfolio's larger holdings, which lost two customers in its promising Retail Media segment and Acadia Healthcare which struggled in a healthcare sector that is markedly out of favour. While down, Treehouse Foods is performing relatively well in a struggling Consumer sector.

Overview of investment activities during the reporting period

- The market was attractively valued when we entered correction territory (down 20 percent).
- During the period, we repositioned roughly 15% of the Portfolio. We trimmed or eliminated some of our winners and lower conviction names and we were able to make what we believe are some nicely priced purchases. We could have done more had the valuation window stayed open longer.

With investments in over 90 companies spanning most sectors and geographies we have a good view into the health of the American economy. Our read is that, except for AI datacentre buildouts and associated technology investments, most businesses are seeing flat to 1% to 2% growth and some are in decline. Pockets of weakness are areas where the consumer overindulged during COVID-19, residential construction and sectors dependent on government funding or tax subsidies – think life science research or green energy projects.

So, what are the catalysts for revenues and earnings to improve? Investors are keenly focused on rate cuts, Federal spending and policy priorities (deregulation) as well as innovation and technology investment driving productivity gains. While lower rates should provide a tailwind for the economy and most small caps, our Portfolio is tilted more towards continued technology investment and innovation than to a dramatic cyclical upswing driven by multiple rate cuts.

As policy uncertainty from both the budget battle and tariffs gradually subsides, all eyes will shift to rates and inflation. Although inflation is likely to trend higher through the summer and fall, we believe the direction of short-term rates is lower. The real issue, in our view, is whether enough sustainable economic growth materialises so that long-bond investors will be willing to underwrite 10- and 30-year purchases at under five percent. Simply stated, more growth equals lower deficits and hopefully lower long-term rates.

NOTES TO THE UNAUDITED ABRIDGED FINANCIAL STATEMENTS

FOR THE SIX MONTH PERIOD ENDED 30 JUNE 2025

1. SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES

The significant accounting policies adopted by Neuberger Berman Investment Funds plc (the "Company") are as follows:

Basis of Preparation of Financial Statements

The financial statements presented are unaudited abridged financial statements for the six month period ended 30 June 2025. They have been prepared in accordance with Financial Reporting Standard ("FRS") 104: 'Interim Financial Reporting' issued by the Financial Reporting Council ("FRC"). The unaudited abridged financial statements should be read in conjunction with the financial statements for the year ended 31 December 2023 which were prepared in accordance with accounting standards generally accepted in Ireland, Irish Statute comprising the Companies Act 2014 (as amended), the European Communities (Undertakings for Collective Investment in Transferable Securities) Regulations, 2011 as amended and the Central Bank (Supervision and Enforcement) Act 2013 (section 48(1)) (Undertakings for Collective Investment in Transferable Securities) Regulations 2019 (the "Central Bank UCITS Regulations"). They have been prepared in accordance with FRS 102: 'The financial reporting standard applicable in the UK and Republic of Ireland'. Accounting standards generally accepted in Ireland in preparing financial statements giving a true and fair view are those published by the Institute of Chartered Accountants in Ireland and issued by the FRC.

The financial statements are prepared under the historical cost convention as modified by the revaluation of the financial assets and financial liabilities held at fair value through profit and loss. Valuation time is market close on the relevant dealing day. The dealing day is each business day or such other day as the Directors may determine and notify to the administrator and to the shareholders in advance. The Directors have made an assessment of the Company's ability to continue as a going concern and are satisfied that the Company has the resources to continue in business for the foreseeable future and at least 12 months from the date these financial statements were approved. Furthermore, the Directors are not aware of any material uncertainties that may cast significant doubt upon the Company's ability to continue as a going concern. Therefore, the financial statements are prepared on the going concern basis.

The format and certain wordings of the financial statements have been adapted from those contained in the Companies Act 2014 (as amended) and FRS 102 so that, in the opinion of the Directors, they more appropriately reflect the nature of the Company's business as an investment fund. The Company meets the criteria to avail of the exemption available to certain open-ended investment funds under FRS 102 not to prepare a cash flow statement.

Taxation

The Company is not subject to the Pillar II global minimum tax requirements, as the Portfolios meet the requirements to be classified as investment undertakings in accordance with the Irish Finance Bill 2024. On this basis there is no qualified domestic top-up tax accrued in the financial statements, given that the Portfolios meet the exemptions, notably being standalone regulated investment funds (as defined in the Taxes Consolidation Act (TCA) 1997).

Distribution Policy

The Directors have determined to accumulate all net investment income and net realised capital gains attributable to the Accumulating Classes and therefore do not intend to declare dividends in respect of shares in such classes.

Source of Distributions

Pursuant to the Articles, the Directors may declare dividends, in respect of any shares out of net income (including dividend and interest income) and/or the excess of realised and unrealised capital gains over realised and unrealised losses in respect of investments of the Company (collectively "Net Income") and also out of capital. Dividends paid out of capital amount to a return or withdrawal of part of a shareholder's original investment or from any capital gains attributable to that original investment. Such dividends may result in an immediate decrease in the NAV of the relevant shares.

It is the current intention of the Directors, subject to any de minimis threshold, to declare and pay as a dividend at least 85% of the Net Income attributable to each of the Distributing Classes, other than (i) the (Weekly) Distributing Classes; (ii) the (Monthly) Distributing Classes; (iii) the (CG) Distributing Classes and (iv) such other Distributing Classes in a Portfolio which are specified in the relevant Supplement to pay dividends out of capital and Net Income. However, shareholders should note that the Directors may, in their discretion, decide not to make such declaration and payment in respect of a Distributing Class.

In respect of the (Weekly) Distributing Classes, the (Monthly) Distributing Classes and the (CG) Distributing Classes, the Directors intend to declare and pay a weekly, monthly or semi-annual dividend, respectively, attributable to the shares of each such class out of a combination of Net Income and capital, so that where Net Income during the relevant period is less than the amount declared, the balance will be paid of the capital represented by the relevant shares, which will enable the classes to distribute regular, set dividends. In the event that the Net Income attributable to the (Weekly) Distributing Classes, the (Monthly) Distributing Classes or the (CG) Distributing Classes exceeds the amount declared during the relevant period, the excess of Net Income over this amount will be retained in a distribution account in respect of the relevant shares and will form part of the dividend payable in respect of the succeeding distribution period. While the foregoing represents the Directors' current intention in respect of the declaration and payment of dividends in respect of the (Weekly) Distributing Classes, the (Monthly) Distributing Classes and the (CG) Distributing Classes, the Directors may in their discretion decide not to make such declaration and payment and there is no guarantee that any such dividends will be paid.

4. SHARE CAPITAL

The authorised share capital of the Company is 500,000,040,000 shares of no par value divided into 40,000 Subscriber Shares of no par value and 500,000,000,000 Participating Shares of no par value. The Directors are empowered to issue up to 500,000,000,000 shares of no par value in the Company on such terms as they think fit.

The Company is an investment company with variable capital due to its ability to issue and redeem Shares on demand. The share capital of the Company is divided into different series of Shares with each series of Shares representing a separate investment portfolio of assets. The Portfolios manage capital in accordance with the UCITS Regulations and the investment objectives and policies applicable to such Portfolio as specified in this Prospectus and the relevant Supplement. The Portfolios are not subject to externally imposed capital requirements. While the Portfolios invest in transferable securities and other liquid financial assets, the Manager also employs an appropriate liquidity risk oversight process, which takes into account efficient portfolio management transactions employed by the Portfolios, in order that each Portfolio is able to comply with its stated redemption terms and conditions.

In order to mitigate potential liquidity risks, the Manager tailors its controls to different investment strategies, liquidity terms and historic client behaviour. As part of its risk oversight, the Manager may employ various liquidity tests, the results of which may lead to a variety of possible solutions, including adjusting asset composition, drawing on applicable overdraft or credit facilities or taking other appropriate actions that would maintain an acceptable level of liquidity. Any Portfolio specific arrangements will be reviewed by the Manager's risk function, portfolio managers of the relevant Portfolio, Chief Investment Officer of the Manager as well as the board of directors of the Manager and the Directors. The Manager's risk team stress-tests each Portfolio on a regular basis in the context of portfolio composition and current/potential market conditions. Stress scenarios are run at different hypothetical redemption levels and the ability of the Portfolios to meet redemption requests in an orderly fashion at these levels are evaluated. Should analysis reveal that any of the Portfolios have low liquidity coverage ratios, conversation and steps are taken by the Manager's risk team and the portfolio team to evaluate these risks and the best way to mitigate them. In addition, daily liquidity buffer reports are monitored to gauge the liquidity risk of each Portfolio. Furthermore, market liquidity factors are monitored in order to capture potential anomalies in market liquidity.

There were 2 Subscriber Shares in issue at 30 June 2025 and 31 December 2024. The Subscriber Shares entitle the holders to attend and vote at general meetings of the Company but do not entitle the holders to participate in the profits or assets of the Company except for a return of capital on a winding-up. The Participating Shares entitle the holders to attend and vote at general meetings of the Company and to participate in the profits and assets of the Company.

The Subscriber shareholders are as follows:

Shareholder Name	Nominal Shareholding
Matsack Nominees Limited	1

The minimum subscriptions and redemption limits in respect of each Portfolio are contained in the Company's Prospectus.

FOR THE SIX MONTH PERIOD ENDED 30 JUNE 20255. MANAGEMENT, ADMINISTRATION, DISTRIBUTION AND DEPOSITARY FEES (CONTINUED)Non-Affiliated Sub-Adviser fees*

The fees paid to the Non-Affiliated Sub-Advisers appointed by the Manager and/or the Sub-Investment Manager, with the exception of Green Court Capital Management Limited and the sub-advisers on Uncorrelated Strategies, will be paid out of the assets of the Portfolio. The aggregate fees paid to all advisers were between 0.65% and 1.50% of the NAV of the Portfolio. The aggregate adviser fee for the six month period ended 30 June 2025 was US$ Nil (30 June 2024: US$ Nil).

Performance Fees

For the period ended 30 June 2025 a performance fee is being calculated on US Long Short Equity, Global High Yield Engagement, Event Driven and Tactical Macro.

Performance Fee paid to the Manager and a Sub-Investment Manager

The Manager and a Sub-Investment Manager may be entitled to receive a performance fee (the "Performance Fee") payable out of the Portfolio's assets in respect of each PF Class in the relevant Portfolio. The Depositary shall verify the calculation of the Performance Fee. The Directors may, with the consent of the Manager, reduce the Performance Fee payable by any Class of Shares. Performance fees are payable on realised and unrealised capital gains taking into account realised and unrealised losses at the end of the Calculation Period defined below for each applicable Portfolio. Consequently, performance fees may be paid on unrealised gains which may subsequently never be realised.

Shareholders should note that, as the Performance Fee is calculated at Class level and not at an individual Shareholder level, they may be charged a Performance Fee even where the NAV of their Shares has remained the same or dropped, for example, where Shareholders purchase or redeem Shares at points other than the start and end of the Calculation Period.

If the Management Agreement or a Sub-Investment Manager is terminated before the end of a Calculation Period in any year the performance fee in respect of the then current Calculation Period will be calculated and paid as though the date of termination were the end of the relevant Calculation Period.

The performance fee will be accrued in the NAV on each Dealing Day and will normally be payable to the Manager or a Sub-Investment Manager in arrears within 30 Business Days of the end of each Calculation Period. However, in the case of Shares redeemed during a Calculation Period, the accrued performance fee in respect of those Shares will be payable to the Manager or a Sub-Investment Manager within 30 Business Days of the date of redemption. Crystallised performance fees shall remain in the relevant Class (but shall not participate in subsequent gains and losses of the relevant Class) until paid to the Manager or a Sub-Investment Manager and shall not be used or made available to satisfy redemptions or pay any fees and expenses of the relevant Class.

The methodology used to calculate the Performance Fee for each applicable Portfolio is as follows:

US Long Short Equity

The Manager may be entitled to receive a performance fee payable out of the Portfolio's assets in respect of each PF Class in the Portfolio.

Definitions

Calculation Period	The Calculation Period shall normally run from 1 January to 31 December in each year except that: - in the case of the initial issue of Shares in each PF Class, the first Calculation Period will run from the date of issue to 31 December; - in the case of the termination of a PF Class, the Calculation Period will terminate on the date of the termination; and - in the case of the termination of the Management Agreement in any year, the Calculation Period will terminate on the date of the termination. The first value used in determining the first Performance Fee for a PF Class shall be the Initial Offer Price.

Definitions (continued)

Crystallisation	The point at which any Performance Fee becomes payable to the Manager. Crystallisation will occur either at the end of the Calculation Period or on a Dealing Day on which a Shareholder redeems or exchanges all or part of its Shareholding.
High Water Mark	The greater of: (i) the initial offer price per Share; and (ii) the NAV per share at the end of any previous Calculation Period in respect of which a Performance Fee was paid.

Methodology

For each Calculation Period, a Performance Fee in respect of each PF Class in issue becomes due in the event that the NAV per share at the end of the Calculation Period exceeds the High Water Mark (net of all costs before the deduction of any accrued Performance Fee, provided that in doing so it is in the Shareholder's best interest) for that particular PF Class.

The Performance Fee will be calculated on each Dealing Day and will be equal to 15% of the amount by which the percentage growth in the NAV per share over the Calculation Period exceeds that of the High Water Mark. The Performance Fee will be accrued on each Dealing Day and will form part of the NAV per share for each PF Class where applicable.

Any Performance Fee accrual on a Dealing Day will be superseded by any accrual made on the following Dealing Day up to the last Dealing Day of the Calculation Period.

In all cases the NAV per share used in the calculation of the Performance Fee is unswung, i.e. it does not include any adjustment for swing pricing.

No Performance Fee will be paid until the NAV per share exceeds the High Water Mark and such fee is only payable on the outperformance of the NAV per share over the Hurdle Rate as described above.

Shareholders should note that, as the Performance Fee is calculated at Class level and not at an individual Shareholder level, they may be charged a Performance Fee even where the NAV of their shares has remained the same or dropped, for example, where Shareholders purchase or redeem Shares at points other than the start and end of the Calculation Period.

The Performance Fee will be accrued in the NAV on each Dealing Day and will normally be payable to the Manager in arrears within 30 Business Days of the end of each Calculation Period. However, in the case of Shares redeemed during a Calculation Period, the accrued performance fee in respect of those Shares will be payable to the Manager within 30 Business Days of the date of redemption.

Crystallised Performance Fees shall remain in the relevant PF Class (but shall not participate in subsequent gains and losses of the relevant Class) until paid to the Manager and shall not be used or made available to satisfy redemptions or pay any fees and expenses of the relevant PF Class.

The Depositary shall verify the calculation of the Performance Fee.

The Directors may, with the consent of the Manager, reduce the Performance Fee payable by any PF Class. Performance Fees are payable on realised and unrealised capital gains, which for the avoidance of doubt includes investment income, taking into account realised and unrealised losses at the end of the Calculation Period. Consequently, Performance Fees may be paid on unrealised gains which may subsequently never be realised.

For the period ended 30 June 2025, the Manager earned a performance fee of US$ 195,213 (30 June 2024: 138,911).

Calculation Period	The Calculation Period shall normally run from 1 January to 31 December in each year except that: - in the case of the initial issue of Shares in each PF Class, the first Calculation Period will run from the date of issue to 31 December; - in the case of the termination of a PF Class, the Calculation Period will terminate on the date of the termination; and - in the case of the termination of the Management Agreement in any year, the Calculation Period will terminate on the date of the termination. The first value used in determining the first Performance Fee for a PF Class shall be the Initial Offer Price.
Crystallisation	The point at which any performance fee becomes payable to the Manager. Crystallisation will occur either at the end of the Calculation Period or on a Dealing Day on which a Shareholder redeems or converts all or part of its Shareholding.
Outperformance	The excess performance of the NAV per share over the performance of the Benchmark during the Calculation Period.

Methodology

For each Calculation Period, a Performance Fee in respect of each PF Class in issue becomes due in respect of any Outperformance, i.e. the excess performance of the NAV per share over the performance of the Benchmark applicable to that particular PF Class during the Calculation Period. The Percentage Fee will be calculated on each Dealing Day and will be equal to 20% of the Outperformance applicable to that particular PF Class over the same period.

In all cases the NAV per share used in the calculation of the Performance Fee is unswung, i.e. it does not include any adjustment for swing pricing.

In the event that the performance of a PF Class over a Calculation Period is less than that of the Benchmark, no Performance Fee shall be payable in respect of that PF Class until such cumulative underperformance relative to its Benchmark has been recovered.

In the event that the PF Class has achieved Outperformance over a Calculation Period, a Performance Fee shall be payable in respect of that PF Class. Upon payment the Benchmark will be reset, this process ensures the NAV per share and the Benchmark start from the same place at the start of the calculation period. Accordingly for the next Calculation Period the commencing Benchmark value will equal the NAV in respect of the PF Class on which the Performance Fee was paid i.e. if the NAV were to equal 110 the commencing Benchmark Value would also equal 110.

Tactical Macro (continued)Methodology

For each Calculation Period, a Performance Fee in respect of each Class in issue becomes due in respect of any Outperformance, i.e. the excess performance of the Net Asset Value per Share (net of all costs before the deduction of any accrued Performance Fee, provided that in doing so it is in the Shareholder's best interest) over the performance of the Benchmark applicable to that particular Class during the Calculation Period. The Performance Fee will be calculated on each Dealing Day and will be up to 20% of the Outperformance applicable to that particular Class over the same period.

In the event that the performance of a Class over a Calculation Period is less than that of the Benchmark, no Performance Fee shall be payable in respect of that Class until such cumulative underperformance relative to its Benchmark has been recovered.

In the event that the Class has achieved Outperformance over a Calculation Period, a Performance Fee shall be payable in respect of that Class. Upon payment the Benchmark will be reset, this process ensures the Net Asset Value per Share and the Benchmark start from the same place at the start of the calculation period. Accordingly for the next Calculation Period, the commencing Benchmark value will equal the Net Asset Value in respect of the Class on which the performance fee was paid i.e. if the Net Asset Value were to equal 110 at the end of a Calculation Period in which a Performance Fee was paid, the Benchmark value at the start of the following Calculation Period would also equal 110.

Shareholders should note that, as the Performance Fee is payable on the outperformance over the Benchmark, they may be charged a Performance Fee where the Net Asset Value of their Shares has declined but to a lesser extent than the Benchmark.

Shareholders should note that, as the Performance Fee is calculated at Class level and not at an individual Shareholder level and as no series accounting is applied in respect of the Performance Fee, they may be charged a Performance Fee even where the Net Asset Value of their Shares has remained the same or dropped, for example, where Shareholders purchase or redeem Shares at points other than the start and end of a Calculation Period.

The Performance Fee will be calculated and accrued daily as at each Valuation Point. The Performance Fee is calculated on the unswung Net Asset Value per Share, i.e. before any adjustment for swing pricing (for more information on "swing pricing" please see the "Determination of Net Asset Value – Adjustments of Valuations and Swing Pricing" section of the Prospectus).

The Performance Fee will normally be payable to the Sub-Investment Manager in arrears within 30 Business Days of 31 December each year. However, in the event of the Crystallisation of the Performance Fee during a Calculation Period, the accrued Performance Fee in respect of such amounts will be payable within 30 Business Days of the end of the calendar quarter during which the Crystallisation occurred.

Crystallised Performance Fees shall remain in the Portfolio until paid to the Sub-Investment Manager and shall not participate in subsequent gains and losses of the Portfolio. Crystallised Performance Fees shall not be used or made available to satisfy redemptions or pay any fees and expenses of the Portfolio or the Company (other than Performance Fees payable to the Sub-Investment Manager).

The Depositary shall verify the calculation of any Performance Fee and ensure that it is not open to the possibility of manipulation.

Performance Fees are payable on realised and unrealised capital gains, which for the avoidance of doubt includes investment income, taking into account realised and unrealised losses at the end of the Calculation Period. Consequently, Performance Fees may be paid on unrealised gains which may subsequently never be realised.

For the period ended 30 June 2025, the Manager earned a performance fee of US$ 366,532 (30 June 2024: US$ Nil).

10. FINANCIAL INSTRUMENT DISCLOSURES

Fair Value of Investments

FRS 102 Section 11.27 on "Fair Value: Disclosure" requires disclosure relating to the fair value hierarchy in which fair value measurements are categorised for assets and liabilities. The disclosures are based on a three-level fair value hierarchy for the inputs used in valuation techniques to measure fair value.

The Company has classified fair value measurements using a fair value hierarchy that reflects the significance of the inputs used in making the measurements. The three levels of the fair value hierarchy under FRS 102 are described below:

Level 1 – Unadjusted quoted prices in active markets that are accessible at the measurement date for identical unrestricted assets or liabilities;

Level 2 – Inputs other than quoted prices included in Level 1 that are observable for the asset or liability, either directly (as prices) or indirectly (derived from prices);

Level 3 – Inputs for the asset or liability that are not based on observable market data (unobservable inputs). Pricing inputs are unobservable for the investment and include situations where there is little, if any market activity for the instrument. The inputs into the determination of fair value require significant management judgement or estimation. As observable prices are not available for these securities, the Portfolios would have used valuation techniques to derive the fair value if applicable.

The level in the fair value hierarchy within which the fair value measurement is categorised in its entirety is determined on the basis of the lowest level input that is significant to the fair value measurement in its entirety. For this purpose, the significance of an input is assessed against the fair value measurement in its entirety. For example, if a fair value measurement uses observable inputs that require significant adjustment based on unobservable inputs, that measure is a Level 3 measurement.

Assessing the significance of a particular input to the fair value measurement in its entirety requires judgement in considering the factors specific to the asset or liability.

Determining what constitutes "observable" requires judgment and is considered by the Manager's valuation committee.

The value of the Portfolios' investments in equity securities, exchange-traded funds, warrants, exchange-traded options purchased and written, for which market quotations are readily available, is generally determined by obtaining valuations from independent pricing services based on the latest sale price quoted on a principal exchange or market for that security (Level 1 inputs). Securities traded primarily on the NASDAQ Stock Market are normally valued at the NASDAQ Official Closing Price ("NOCP") provided by NASDAQ each business day. The NOCP is the most recently reported price as of 4:00:02 p.m., Eastern Time, unless that price is outside the range of the "inside" bid and asked prices (i.e., the bid and asked prices that dealers quote to each other when trading for their own accounts); in that case, NASDAQ will adjust the price to equal the inside bid or asked price, whichever is closer. Because of delays in reporting trades, the NOCP may not be based on the price of the last trade to occur before the market closes. If there is no sale of a security on a particular day, the independent pricing services may value the security based on market quotations.

The value of participatory notes is determined by obtaining valuations from independent pricing services based on the underlying equity security and applicable exchange rate (Level 1 inputs).

The value of the Portfolios' investments in debt securities is determined primarily by obtaining valuations from independent pricing services based on readily available mid quotations, or if quotations are not available, by methods which include various considerations based on security type (generally Level 2 inputs). In addition to the consideration of yields or prices of securities of comparable quality, coupon, maturity and type, indications as to values from dealers, and general market conditions, the following is a description of other Level 2 inputs and related valuation techniques used by independent pricing services to value certain types of debt securities held by the Portfolios:

Corporate Bonds. Inputs used to value corporate debt securities generally include relevant credit information, observed market movements, sector news, US Treasury yield curve or relevant benchmark curve, and other market information, which may include benchmark yield curves, reported trades, broker-dealer quotes, issuer spreads, comparable securities, and reference data, such as market research publications, when available ("Other Market Information").

Convertible Bonds. Inputs used to value convertible bonds (including CoCos) generally include underlying stock data, conversion premiums, listed bond and preferred stock prices and Other Market Information, which may include benchmark curves, trade execution data, and sensitivity analysis, when available.

U.S. Treasury Obligations. Inputs used to value U.S. Treasury securities generally include quotes from several inter-dealer brokers and Other Market Information.

U.S. Government Agency Securities. Inputs used to value U.S. Government Agency securities generally include obtaining benchmark quotes and Other Market Information.

Asset-Backed Securities and Mortgage-Backed Securities. Inputs used to value asset-backed securities and mortgage-backed securities generally include models that consider a number of factors, which may include the following: prepayment speeds, cash flows, spread adjustments and Other Market Information.

Collateralised Loan Obligations (CLOs): The value of collateralised loan obligations is primarily determined by cash flow data, relevant loan pricing data and market color, and research from market participants and trading desks (Level 2 or 3 inputs).

High Yield Securities. Inputs used to value high yield securities generally include a number of observations of equity and credit default swap curves related to the issuer and Other Market Information.

Emerging Markets Debt and Foreign Government Securities. Inputs used to value emerging markets debt and foreign government securities generally include dealer quotes, bond market activity, discounted cash flow models, and other relevant information such as credit spreads, benchmark curves and Other Market Information.

The value of term loans is determined primarily by obtaining valuations from independent pricing services based on broker quotes (generally Level 2 or Level 3 inputs depending on the number of quotes available).

The value of futures contracts is determined by obtaining valuations from independent pricing services at the settlement price at the market close (Level 1 inputs).

The value of forward foreign currency contracts is determined by obtaining valuations from independent pricing services based on actual traded currency rates on independent pricing services' networks, along with other traded and quoted currency rates provided to the pricing services by leading market participants (Level 2 inputs).

The value of credit default swaps is determined by obtaining valuations from independent pricing services using a model that considers a number of factors, which may include default probabilities, credit curves, recovery rates and cash flows (Level 2 or 3 inputs).

The value of inflation swaps is determined primarily by obtaining valuations from independent pricing services based on references to the underlying inflation rates including forward inflation expectation rate and the respective interbank offered forward rate to produce the daily price. The present value is calculated based off of expected cash flows based on swap parameters along with reference to the underlying forward inflation curve and reference rate (Level 2 inputs).

The value of interest rate swaps is determined primarily by obtaining valuations from independent pricing services based on references to the underlying rates including the local overnight index swap rate and the respective interbank offered forward rate to produce the daily price. The present value is calculated based off of expected cash flows based on swap parameters along with reference to the underlying yield curve and reference rate (Level 2 inputs).

The value of total return swaps is determined by obtaining valuations from independent pricing services using the underlying asset and stated benchmark interest rate (Level 2 inputs).

The value of cross currency swaps is determined by obtaining valuations from independent pricing services based on present value of expected cash flows based on swap parameters along with reference to the underlying yield curve and reference rate (Level 2 inputs).

The value of volatility swaps is determined primarily by obtaining valuations from independent pricing services and is based on a predetermined volatility level versus the actual amount of volatility realised over a period data of the reference asset (Level 2 or 3 inputs).

The value of variance swaps is determined primarily by obtaining valuations from independent pricing services and is based on the historical realised and expected future variance (or fair variance) of the reference asset (Level 2 or 3 inputs).

The value of correlation swaps is determined primarily by obtaining valuations from independent pricing services and is based on the difference in the realised correlation and a fixed correlation value (Level 2 or 3 inputs).

The value of contracts for difference ("CFD") is determined primarily by obtaining valuations from independent pricing services, which are based on references to the underlying asset and the stated reference rate (Level 2 or 3 inputs).

The value of swaptions is determined by obtaining valuations from independent pricing services or counterparty pricing source (Level 2 inputs).

Option contracts that are traded over-the-counter are generally valued on the basis of quotations provided by broker dealers or prices provided by independent pricing services who use a series of techniques including simulated pricing models and/or curve fitting (bootstrapping), which aids in determining the present value of the contracts. The pricing models use inputs that are observed from actively quoted markets such as issuer details, indices, spreads, interest rates, yield curves, credit curves, volatility surfaces, and exchange rates (Level 2 inputs).

Certificates of deposit are valued at amortised cost (Level 2 inputs).

The value of repurchase and reverse repurchase agreements is determined by the Manager primarily by obtaining valuations from independent pricing services, which are evaluated at par (Level 2 inputs) in line with market conventions.

The Manager has appointed a valuation committee, which reviews independent pricing service providers across all relevant types of securities.

Investments in non-exchange traded investment funds are valued using the respective fund's daily calculated net asset value ("NAV") per share (Level 2 inputs), when available.

If a valuation is not available from an independent pricing service, or if the Manager has reason to believe that the valuation received does not represent the amount a Portfolio might reasonably expect to receive on a current sale in an orderly transaction, the Manager seeks to obtain quotations from brokers or dealers (generally considered Level 2 or Level 3 inputs depending on the number of quotes available). If such quotations are not available, the security is valued using methods the Board of Directors has approved in the good-faith belief that the resulting valuation will reflect the fair value of the security.

Inputs and assumptions considered in determining the fair value of a security based on Level 2 or Level 3 inputs may include, but are not limited to, the type of the security; the initial cost of the security; the existence of any contractual restrictions on the security's disposition; the price and extent of public trading in similar securities of the issuer or of comparable companies; quotations or evaluated prices from broker-dealers and/or pricing services; information obtained from the issuer and/or analysts; an analysis of the company's or issuer's financial statements; an evaluation of the inputs that influence the issuer and the market(s) in which the security is purchased and sold.

The value of the Portfolios' investments in foreign securities is generally determined using the same valuation methods and inputs as other Portfolio investments, as discussed above. Foreign security prices expressed in local currency values are normally translated into the Portfolio's base currency using the exchange rates as of 4:00 p.m., Eastern Time on days when the relevant financial markets are open for business. The Board of Directors has approved the use of ICE Data Pricing & Reference Data LLC ("ICE") to assist in determining the fair value of foreign equity securities when changes in the value of a certain index suggest that the closing prices on the foreign exchanges may no longer represent the amount that a Portfolio could expect to receive for those securities or on days when foreign markets are closed and US markets are open. In each of these events, ICE will provide adjusted prices for certain foreign equity securities using a statistical analysis of historical correlations of multiple factors (Level 2 inputs). The Board of Directors has also approved the use of ICE to evaluate the prices of foreign debt securities as of the time as of which a Portfolio's share price is calculated. ICE utilizes benchmark spread and yield curves and evaluates available market activity from the local close to the time as of which a Portfolio's share price is calculated (Level 2 inputs) to assist in determining prices for certain foreign debt securities.

In the case of both foreign equity and foreign debt securities, in the absence of precise information about the market values of these foreign securities as of the time as of which a Portfolio's share price is calculated, the Board of Directors has determined on the basis of available data that prices adjusted or evaluated in this way are likely to be closer to the prices a Portfolio could realise on a current sale than are the prices of those securities established at the close of the foreign markets in which the securities primarily trade.

Fair value prices are necessarily estimates, and there is no assurance that such a price will be at or close to the price at which the security is next quoted or traded.

Fixed income securities are subject to the risk of an issuer's ability to meet principal and interest payments on the obligation (credit risk) and may also be subject to price volatility due to such factors as interest rate sensitivity, market perception of the creditworthiness of the issuer and general market liquidity (market risk). Fixed income securities are also exposed to the risk that their or their issuers' credit ratings may be downgraded, which can cause a significant drop in the value of such securities.

Lower rated or unrated (i.e. non-investment grade or high yield) securities are more likely to react to developments affecting market and credit risk than are more highly rated securities, which primarily react to movements in the general level of interest rates. Investors should carefully consider the relative risks of investing in high yield securities and understand that such securities generally are not meant for short-term investing. Investors who subscribe in a currency other than the base currency of the Company are exposed to currency risk. Fluctuations in these exchange rates may affect the return on investment.

Past performance is not indicative of future results. For details of the investment risks, which may include but are not limited to liquidity, interest rate, credit and currency risk, see the current prospectus. Please note that any dividends/interest which the Company may receive may be subject to withholding tax. The benchmark does not take into account the effects of tax and the deduction is therefore not reflected in the benchmark return illustrated herein. The investment objective and performance benchmark is a target only and not a guarantee of the Company performance. The index is unmanaged and cannot be invested in directly. Index returns assume reinvestment of dividends and capital gains and unlike fund returns do not reflect fees or expenses. Adverse movements in currency exchange rates can result in a decrease in return and a loss of capital. The investments of each Portfolio may be fully hedged into the Portfolio's base currency: this may reduce currency risks but may also expose the Portfolio to other risks such as the default of a counterparty. As noted above for further information relating to risks specific to this strategy please see the current prospectus.
