Market Context

The emerging market ESG benchmark returned 0.74% during the month, driven by tighter credit spreads. Benchmark spreads compressed to 172 bps from 179 bps at end-July, while the index yield declined from 6.64% to 6.61%. After the July rise in developed market yields pressure remained in August driven by resilient economic data and renewed inflation concerns, particularly amid the lack of progress on reopening the Strait of Hormuz. Moves were most pronounced at the long end of the curve, with 30-year yields in the US, Germany, and Japan reaching their highest levels since 2007, 2011, and inception in 1999, respectively. A surprise announcement by the US Treasury to increase long-end buybacks led to a modest retracing of yields, alongside a 9.7% rise in gold prices and a weaker dollar index.

Within the broad market index, high-yield credits (+1.06%) outperformed investment-grade (+0.70%), reflecting their lower sensitivity to US rate volatility. At the country level, Venezuela was the strongest performer, returning 5.6%, supported by further progress in attracting investment into its energy sector. Lebanon followed, as the authorities advanced banking sector reforms. Both countries remain in default. Argentina was the weakest performer, returning -3.1%, despite exiting the CCC rating segment following upgrades. Senegal also lagged, against a backdrop of continued political tensions and financial pressures.

Portfolio Positioning

Security selection contributed positively to relative performance, while top-down positioning and country allocation detracted.

Within country allocation, the largest contributors were the fund's overweight positions in South Africa and Ivory Coast. The overweight to Argentina was the principal detractor. Within security selection, there were several smaller contributors like Ivory Coast, Argentina, Morocco, Brazil adding up and only Ghana curve selection detracting.

During the month, we reduced exposure to Brazil and Trinidad and Tobago as part of a broader effort to lower portfolio beta following strong performance.

Outlook

US policy developments, global financial market dynamics, and geopolitical uncertainty in the Middle East are likely to remain the primary drivers of emerging market performance in the months ahead.

Emerging market fundamentals remain supportive. Growth differentials relative to developed markets are near 2%, credit quality continues to improve as reflected in a broad wave of sovereign and corporate rating upgrades, and default rates remain low. Against this backdrop, emerging market fixed income appears well-positioned to benefit from a continued recovery in asset-class flows.

Although emerging market spreads have tightened toward the lower end of their historical range, we continue to see attractive value opportunities and potential spread compression across improving credits with clear rating-upgrade trajectories, as well as selected off-benchmark securities.

Past performance is not indicative of future results. The value of investments may go down as well as up and investors may not get back any of the amount invested. The performance data does not take account of the commissions and costs incurred by investors when subscribing for or redeeming shares. It should not be assumed that any investments in securities, companies, sectors or markets identified and described were or will be profitable. Investors may not get back the full amount invested. For further details of the investment risks, please refer to the current prospectus. Please note that any dividends/interest which the Fund may receive may be subject to withholding tax. The benchmark does not take into account the effects of tax and the deduction is therefore not reflected in the benchmark return illustrated herein. The investment objective and performance benchmark is a target only and not a guarantee of the Fund performance. The index is unmanaged and cannot be invested in directly. Index returns assume reinvestment of dividends and capital gains and unlike fund returns do not reflect fees or expenses. Adverse movements in currency exchange rates can result in a decrease in return and a loss of capital. Investments of each portfolio may be fully hedged into its base currency potentially reducing currency risks but may expose the portfolio to other risks such as a default of a counterparty.

Monthly and weekly Distributing Classes will distribute out of income and may also pay out of capital which will be eroded; investors in these classes should be aware that the payment out of capital may have different tax implications from distributions of income and should seek tax advice. In respect of the C, C1, C2, E and B share classes a contingent deferred sales charge may be payable to the Investment Manager in line with the provisions of the Fund’s prospectus.
