Performance is representative of the Neuberger Sustainable Emerging Markets Debt – Hard Currency Fund USD I Accumulating Class (the "Fund") and has been calculated to account for the deduction of fees. Fund performance does not take account of any commission or costs incurred by investors when subscribing for or redeeming shares. Investors who subscribe in a currency other than the base currency of the Fund should note that returns may increase or decrease as a result of currency fluctuations. The fees and charges paid by the Fund will reduce the return on your investment. Source of all data and charts (unless stated otherwise): Neuberger.

Market Context

The emerging market ESG benchmark returned -1.71% during the month, driven by the combination of higher US Treasury yields and wider credit spreads. ESG index spreads widened to 179 bps from 167 bps at the end of June, while the index yield increased from 6.27% to 6.64%. Renewed tensions between the US and Iran led to a sharp rise in oil prices and reignited deflation concerns in global fixed income markets, while the Federal Reserve's month-end decision contributed to curve steepening. As a result, the 30-year US Treasury yield closed July at a post-2007 high of 5.27%, while the 10-year Bund yield reached a post-2011 high of 3.2%. In equities, a reassessment of the AI theme triggered a sharp decline across major indices, although markets remained substantially higher than at the start of the year.

High-yield credits outperformed investment-grade issuers in the broad market index, returning -0.9% versus -2%, reflecting lower sensitivity to US rate movements. Low-beta markets such as Malaysia and Uruguay were among the weakest performers, returning -3.1% and -2.9%, respectively. Lebanon was the strongest performer, gaining 8% as authorities advanced negotiations toward an agreement with Israel. Mozambique also outperformed, supported by its growing role as an LNG producer and its favorable exposure to higher energy prices.

Portfolio Positioning

Country allocation and security selection contributed positively to relative performance, while top-down positioning was a detractor.

Within country allocation, the fund's overweight to high-yield Sri Lanka and (ESG policy-driven) absence from Bahrain, which remains particularly vulnerable to the economic and security implications of renewed US-Iran tensions, were the largest contributors to performance. The (ESG policy-driven) absence from Lebanon was the main detractor. Within security selection, positioning in Ivory Coast contributed the most.

During the month, we added to our overweight position Argentina, which became eligible for the custom benchmark at month-end and where we see positive credit trends, in the Dominican Republic, where tax reform could provide upside to fiscal performance, and in South Africa where we see increased resilience to global risks. We also reduced exposure to Trinidad and Tobago and exited Armenia and Zambia where we see limited further upside.

The fund participated in new issue transactions from Chile, Hungary and the African Export-Import Bank.

Outlook

US policy developments, global financial market dynamics, and geopolitical uncertainty in the Middle East are likely to remain the primary drivers of emerging market performance in the months ahead.

Emerging market fundamentals remain supportive. Growth differentials relative to developed markets are near 2%, credit quality continues to improve as reflected in a broad wave of sovereign and corporate rating upgrades, and default rates remain low. Against this backdrop, emerging market fixed income appears well-positioned to benefit from a continued recovery in asset-class flows.

Although emerging market spreads have tightened toward the lower end of their historical range, we continue to see attractive value opportunities and potential spread compression across improving credits with clear rating-upgrade trajectories, as well as selected off-benchmark securities.
