Class A	$68	0.67%

How did the Fund perform last year?

The Fund's yield curve positioning was the largest detractor from performance, as the Fund maintained a barbelled approach, whereas the Bloomberg 7-Year General Obligation (G.O.) Index (the Index) was bulleted in the intermediate portion of the yield curve. Security selection was also a small headwind for returns. On the upside, the Fund's duration positioning contributed to performance. In particular, having a duration that was longer than the Index was beneficial as interest rates moved lower over the period. Sector positioning was also additive for returns, driven by our revenue bond positioning.
