|---|---|---|
| Institutional Class | $108 | 0.94% |

How did the Fund perform last year?

Some powerful thematic trends lie behind the Fund's return for the year. First and foremost is a meaningful exposure to companies benefiting from the massive capital spending on data centers for AI applications and the associated demand for power, memory and connectivity. We also witnessed strong contributions from companies providing next generation defense capabilities as well as space-based technology and assets. On the negative side, the laggards were impacted by a combination of management missteps, fear of potential AI disruption and financial leverage.

Performance Attribution

Top Contributors

- Historic sector biases – overweight IT and underweight Financials versus the Russell 2000® Value Index (the Index)
- Exposure to companies benefiting from AI

Top Detractors

- Stock selection in Consumer Discretionary and Health Care
- Overweight in Utilities versus the Index
