This is a marketing communication. Neuberger Commodities Fund*

What is it?

A diversified fund with exposure to 51 commodities in 8 sectors via commodity-related financial derivative instruments, limited to total return swaps. This can amplify both potential returns and potential losses. The Fund invests in equities and equity-related securities, units or shares of collective investment schemes, and fixed income instruments. The Fund will also invest in fixed income instruments, including cash and cash equivalent instruments to manage the collateral of the swap exposures.

Why Invest in a Commodities Fund?

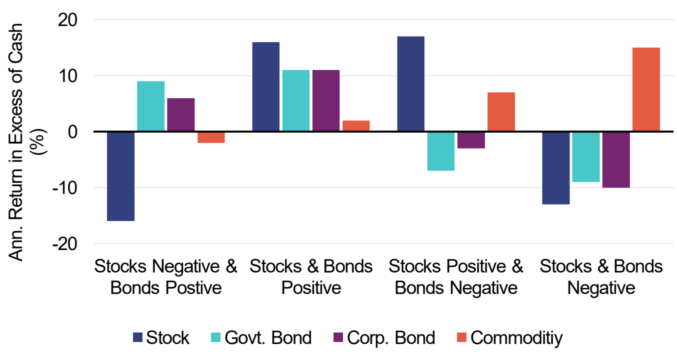
Commodities can play an important strategic role within investors' portfolios: they can act as a diversifier, an inflation hedge and enhance performance potential.

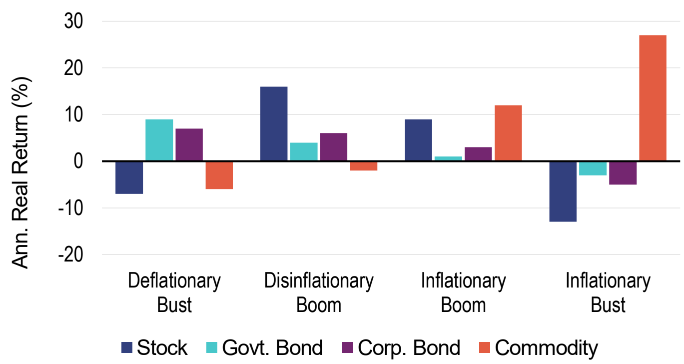
How Does It Work?

The value of commodities is directly related to scarcity, so we focus on scarcity-based positioning within the fund, using derivative instruments. Unlike traditional assets, we believe that risk is not rewarded in commodities, so the fund underweights commodities with excess volatility using a risk-aware approach. We believe that major commodity indices, such as the Bloomberg Commodity Index and the S&P GSCI Index, use production data to determine constituent weights, making them susceptible to concentration risk.

The Case for Commodities[1]

Potential benefits associated with investment in commodities:





A Reliable Diversifier for Stock / Bond Portfolios
Historically, commodities have added value during government bond sell-offs, but have added the most value when stocks and bonds couple on the downside.

Inflation-Hedging Potential
Commodities have a high correlation to inflation measures and have outperformed traditional assets in inflationary periods. Commodities have been a reliable hedge for inflationary busts or stagflations.

* Effective August 4, 2026, the fund's name was updated to reflect the firm's rebranding from Neuberger Berman or NB to Neuberger. No other changes have been made to the fund.

CPI is the year over year percent change in the CPI Index. Unexpected inflation is the rate of change in CPI. Bust and boom regimes are defined by the change in the level of Gross Domestic Product (GDP) compared to the previous year. If the current year-over-year (YoY) GDP minus the YoY GDP lagged one year is less than zero, it is considered a bust regime and vice versa. Inflationary and deflationary regimes are defined by the change in the level of the Consumer Price Index (CPI) compared to the previous year. If the current YoY CPI minus the YoY CPI lagged one year is less than zero, it is considered a deflationary regime and vice versa.

Why Neuberger?

Strong Track Record: The Commodity Strategy Composite has beaten its benchmark[1] in all calendar years since inception (gross of fees) and generated an annualized excess return of 1.9% (net of fees) and 2.8% (gross of fees) since inception*.

Experienced Team: The Portfolio Management Team has managed the strategy on which the Fund is based for over 16 years, and the Lead Portfolio Managers have experience and expertise delivering commodity investment solutions since early millennia.

Differentiated Process: Portfolio construction is based on scarcity profiles, and we make use of high-quality research, including alternative data, such as hurricane tracking and commitments of traders, with the aim of optimising return and assessing risk contribution.

Flexibility: Compared to benchmarks such as the Bloomberg Commodity Index and the S&P GSCI Index, we seek to gain exposure to a wider set of supply-constrained, niche markets and allow for tactical tilts to benefit from factor risk premia and pure-alpha sources. Active maturity extension along the commodity curves allow flexibility for cost-effective roll harvesting. In addition, the flexibility to use short-term cash like investments allow bettering yields above and beyond T-Bills.

1 | More predictive risk forecasting and portfolio-level risk control seeks to better manage changing economic regimes

2 | Short-term tactical trades can add additional return by capitalizing on temporary market dynamics

3 | Active contract selection aims to enhance contract rolling and minimize transaction costs

4 | Access to unique data sources and analytics such as market segmentation, weather and hurricane tracking can help minimize idiosyncratic risks

5 | Risk targeting can increase upside participation in inflation surprises and reduce the downside during prolonged high-volatility periods

6 | Actively managing excess cash collateral can enhance returns

Key Risks

Commodities Risk: The fund's exposure to the commodities markets, and/or a particular sector of the commodities markets, may subject the fund to greater volatility than investments in traditional securities, such as stocks and bonds. The commodities markets are impacted by a variety of factors, including changes in overall market movements, resource availability, commodity price volatility, political and economic events and policies, interest rates and inflation rates.

Counterparty Risk: The risk that a counterparty will not fulfil its payment obligation for a trade, contract or other transaction, on the due date.

Credit Risk: The risk that bond issuers may fail to meet their interest repayments, or repay debt, resulting in temporary or permanent losses to the fund. This risk is greater than average for investments with a lower credit rating.

Currency Risk: Investors who subscribe in a currency other than the base currency of the fund are exposed to currency risk. Fluctuations in exchange rates may affect the return on investment. Where past performance is shown it is based on the share class to which this factsheet relates. If the currency of this share class is different from your local currency, then you should be aware that due to exchange rate fluctuations the performance shown may increase or decrease if converted into your local currency.

Derivatives Risk: The fund is permitted to use certain types of financial derivative instruments (including certain complex instruments). This may increase the fund's leverage significantly which may cause large variations in the value of your share. (Investors should note that the fund may achieve its investment objective by investing principally in Financial Derivative Instruments (FDI)). Certain investment risks apply in relation to the use of FDI. The use of leverage can amplify both gains and losses, which may result in a significant or a total loss of the fund's value in adverse market conditions.

Interest Rate Risk: The risk of interest rate movements affecting the value of fixed-rate bonds.

Liquidity Risk: The risk that the fund may be unable to sell an investment readily at its fair market value. In extreme market conditions this can affect the fund's ability to meet redemption requests upon demand.

Market Risk: The risk of a change in the value of a position as a result of underlying market factors, including among other things, the overall performance of companies and the market perception of the global economy.

Model Risk: The investment strategy of a fund using a quantitative investment approach is rules based and model-driven. Therefore, it would not necessarily result in a security being sold because that security's issuer was in financial trouble or defaulted, or had its credit rating downgraded, unless such indicators are tracked by the investment strategy of that fund. There is no guarantee that the investment strategy of such a fund will meet the purpose for which it was designed.

Operational Risk: The risk of direct or indirect loss resulting from inadequate or failed processes, people and systems including those relating to the safekeeping of assets or from external events.

For full information on these and other risks, please refer to the fund prospectus and offering documents, including the KID or KIID, as applicable.

This Fund meets the requirements of Article 8 of the SFDR. Further information is available in the Fund's offering documents and at www.nb.com

Composite Description

- The Commodity Strategy Composite (the "Composite"), formerly known as QIG Commodity Composite and the Risk Balanced Commodity Strategy, includes the performance of all Commodity Strategy portfolios with no investment minimum managed on a fully discretionary basis by the Quant and Multi-Asset Class team. The Commodity strategy seeks to deliver risk-adjusted returns through a long-only, diversified commodities portfolio. The strategy's disciplined investment process employs both a proprietary risk-based approach to developing core commodity exposures with an active approach to selecting short to medium-term tactical tilts. The strategy seeks to provide investors with returns that are not highly correlated with other major asset classes, and may improve the overall risk-reward profile of an investment portfolio. The Composite creation date is April 2014 and performance inception date is June 2010. A complete list of Neuberger's composites is available upon request. Effective March 2018 the composite has been renamed from QIG Commodity Strategy Composite to the Risk Balanced Commodity Strategy Composite. Effective January 2019 the composite has been renamed from Risk Balanced Commodity Strategy Composite to the Commodity Strategy Composite.

Primary Benchmark Description

- The benchmark is the Bloomberg Commodity Index (the "Index"). The Index is composed of commodities traded on US exchanges, with the exception of aluminum, nickel and zinc, which trade on the London Metal Exchange (LME). The index is calculated on a total return basis and reflects the return on fully collateralized position in the underlying commodity futures.

Reporting Currency

- Valuations are computed and performance is reported in US Dollars. Performance includes reinvestment of dividends and other earnings.

Fees

- Composite Gross of Fee returns are the return on investments reduced by any trading expenses incurred during the period. Composite Net of Fee returns are the Gross of Fee returns reduced by model investment advisory fees.
- Presented risk measures are calculated using gross-of-fee composite returns.
- To the extent that a composite contains fund(s) whereby performance is calculated based on changes in monthly NAV's, net returns reflect miscellaneous fund expenses (admin, legal, etc.) in addition to investment management fees for the portion of composite containing these vehicles.

Fee Schedule

- The annual investment advisory fee, generally payable quarterly, is as follows: 0.85% on the first $25mn; 0.75% on the next $25mn; 0.45% on the next $50mn; 0.35% thereafter.

Internal Dispersion

- Internal dispersion is calculated using the asset-weighted standard deviation of annual gross returns of those portfolios that were in the Composite for the entire year. Internal dispersion is not calculated if the Composite does not contain at least 6 portfolios for the entire year.

Annualized Standard Deviation

- The three-year annualized standard deviation measures the variability of the Composite and the benchmark returns over the preceding 36-month period. The standard deviation is not required for periods prior to 2011.
