
The information provided below gives some general information as it pertains to beneficiaries of IRAs and Roth IRAs. This information is not intended to provide specific recommendations in your particular situation. On December 20, 2019, Congress enacted the SECURE (Setting Every Community Up For Retirement Enhancement) Act.

The majority of the Act provisions took effect in 2020 although some took effect the day the Act was signed and some provisions have a retroactive effect.

Of major importance to our IRA and Roth IRA shareholders is the elimination of the “stretch-out” IRA. Before the SECURE Act, if an IRA owner died after Required Minimum Distributions (RMDs) had begun, distributions had to continue as least as rapidly as before death. If death occurred before RMDs had begun, the entire account had to be distributed by the end of the 5th year following the year of death unless paid to a “designated beneficiary” in which case the payments could be “stretched out” over the life expectancy of the beneficiary.

Under SECURE, the entire account must be paid out within 10 years following the year of death regardless of whether or not RMDs have begun. Non-designated beneficiaries are still subject to the 5-year rule.

SECURE introduces a new term: The Eligible Designated Beneficiary (EDB) and adds a new rule that applies only to an Eligible Designated Beneficiary. An Eligible Designated Beneficiary is defined as:

- A surviving spouse.
- A minor child of the deceased – but only until that child reaches the age of majority.
- A person who is disabled or chronically ill.
- An individual who is not more than 10 years younger than the deceased.

For these beneficiaries, payments may be made over the beneficiary’s life expectancy if payments commence within 1 year of death. Upon the death of the Eligible Designated Beneficiary, all remaining amounts must be distributed within 10 years of the death of the Eligible Designated Beneficiary.

There are special rules that apply when the beneficiary is an entity such as, a trust or the estate of the deceased.

The above is a brief summary of the new rules under the SECURE Act. We strongly urge you to seek appropriate counsel before taking any action regarding your distribution options as the beneficiary of a Neuberger Berman IRA/Roth IRA.
