
Neuberger Berman Product Approval Approach

MiFID II¹ establishes Product Governance requirements intended to ensure that European regulated entities that manufacture and distribute financial products (“Products”) act in the best interests of investors both in the initial development of Products and throughout their lifecycle.

In order to achieve this, investment firms such as Neuberger Berman (“NB”) must maintain, operate and review a process for the approval of each new Product as well as significant changes to existing Products before they are marketed or distributed to investors. Firms are also required to monitor whether any Products are being purchased by investors for whom they were not designed.

NB runs a comprehensive product approval approach (summarised below) which includes ensuring that each Product has an identified target market of investors for which is it suitable.

Products are reviewed individually and comprehensively at least once per year, and more frequently in specific circumstances such as adverse market conditions, performance concerns or investor queries. The review considers various aspects of a Product including performance and changes to the regulatory environment.
