Rates Relief or Slowdown Uncertainty?

With the U.S. Federal Reserve (Fed) now cutting rates, investors must decide whether the market will trade “rates relief” or “slowdown uncertainty.” The Asset Allocation Committee (AAC) maintains its soft-landing outlook, which suggests a moderate rate-cutting cycle that gives rate relief to the economy’s “have-nots”—lower-income consumers and smaller companies—more than its “haves.” Renewed stimulus for the sharply slowing Chinese economy has improved the outlook for non-U.S. markets and commodities, but we need to see its full impact to lift our views above target.

UNEMPLOYMENT FOLLOWED RATES UP, WITH A LAG—WILL RATE CUTS STEM ITS RISE?

EQUITY

- The AAC anticipates further broadening of U.S. equity-market performance now that rate cutting is underway, but larger companies are both fully valued and less sensitive to rate changes.
- Renewed stimulus from China has improved the outlook for non-U.S. markets, but we still think its structural challenges will continue to weigh on the global economy; we remain at target in our view on Europe; and while we remain constructive on Japan on a secular horizon, given continuing evolution of corporate governance, we move from an overweight to an at-target view as yen strengthening becomes a potential headwind.

FIXED INCOME

- The AAC downgraded its view on investment grade bonds to at-target, given full valuations.
- Our soft-landing outlook and debt sustainability concerns make us cautious on longer-dated bonds, even as policy rates are cut.
- We have become more positive on emerging markets debt given attractive yields amid the global rate-cutting cycle.

REAL AND ALTERNATIVE ASSETS

- The AAC continues to view commodities as a useful hedge against potential inflation and geopolitical shocks, but slowing global demand prevents us from maintaining our overweight view.
- We remain cautious on core real estate, but this is offset by the renewed tailwind of declining rates, and what we see as abundant market-dislocation opportunities in the value-add and opportunistic sectors, and particularly in real estate secondaries.
- We maintain our longstanding view that outsized rewards are available in private equity secondaries and co-investments, but primary private equity buyouts are also beginning to look more attractive against a backdrop of declining rates.
